Council splits on Patterson property

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE CARMEL City Council will seek Coastal Commission approval to permit development of three beachfront residential parcels on the Patterson property, despite a last-ditch attempt by two council members to block the amendment.

The council voted 3-2, over the opposition of Council members Mike Brown and Helen Arnold, to request an amendment to its Local Coastal Program to allow the development on land adjacent to a 4,600 sq. ft. parcel deeded as open space to the city last year.

Patterson originally had sought four building sites, but donated the land to the city of Carmel June 1, 1981 and then redesigned his project to include only three homes on the remaining land.

The planning commission recommended the proposed amendment to the Carmel LCP which drew the sudden and unexpected ire of Brown and Arnold at the council's Tuesday meeting.

Mrs. Arnold produced photographs of the property donated to the city by Patterson, and said "the piece of land that was given to the city was down in a gully" and probably isn't worth the $400,000 value which has been placed upon it.

"I don't believe there's anyone who would pay $400,000 for this property down in the gully," Mrs. Arnold said. "Mr. Patterson had nine lots' he's already developed five. When we allow private property rights to be dominant over the public good, we're doomed."

Councilman Mike Brown also questioned whether the parcel given the city is worth $400,000. Brown has tried unsuccessfully to obtain state funds to purchase all of the Patterson property so that it can remain in open space.

"With homes being built out to the property line, you have a problem knowing where the private land ends and the public begins," Brown said. "I hope this could stay open as much as possible. It's a beautiful piece of land."

Councilman Howard Brunn said he was "confused and amazed" that questions were raised about the value of the Patterson gift.

"I don't think the value of the land is the issue at this point," Brunn said.

Carmel attorney Don Hubbard, who represented the property owner, reminded the council that the $400,000 value of the gift was determined by a certified real estate appraiser.

Time to think twice

Dear Editor:

This is not a new subject but very important to the life of Carmel as a village — the Carmel-by-the-Sea Post Office. As many of us know, five or six years ago a town meeting was called and the subject was "what to name the building at the mouth of the valley" that was originally constructed to be a distributional postal building to ease the burden of the village's inadequate post office space.

Previous to this meeting, the city lost its opportunity via bureaucracy to do a joint venture between the post office department and the city at the Sunset Center. A complete report of that scenario may be found in the Pine Cone covered by Mayor Laiolo on March 5, 1982.

Now what you will be faced with in at least five years when the postal service lease is up is house delivery, no village post office and all the mail service stemming from the mouth of the valley in the new facility.

I am one of the vocal opponents of allowing the name "Carmel" to be put on that facility based on the understanding from the postal representative that it is customary when the postal service upgrades and moves to a new location that the name of the postal office is put on the new structure and the old location is phased out.

Now my question to a community who can't agree on anything except their desire to have post box mail is, "Will you wait until it's too late and the mail service uses the excuse of 'lost our lease' to get out from under your responsibility to the community's wishes and needs?"

Mark my words — the post office is the hub and center of the village life — which the mouth of the valley where new Carmel, as it is now considered, would love to have.

For instance, go to the Carmel post office and turn left to see unique shops and service-oriented businesses galore.

Carmel residents think twice, act at once — you could lose your business district that pays for all of your services through their city taxes to a neighboring area that benefits from your name and pays nothing for your well-being.

Thank you for thinking twice.

'Lily white,' not Jim Crow

Dear Editor:

May I take exception to the letter of Milton Mayer wherein he accused Carmel of being a "Jim Crow" town.

Carmel may be a "lily white" town and if that is so it is regrettable, but not a "Jim Crow" town.

No person of color, no matter what shade, ever has to step off of the sidewalk for an approaching white, nor sit in the back of the bus, nor enter the back door of a building, and if they are now refused a motel/hotel room or a restaurant meal I would hope the full weight of the law would be brought down on the offending proprietor.

When Dr. Mayer is calling names I would hope he would use the correct terms.

Shalom—

P.S. And as long as I am here I strongly object to the editorial in the same issue, same pages, March 11 issue.

Wants data on whales

Dear Editor:

In October, 1983, a new book is to be published, which will include everything that is presently known about California's gray whale. An important aspect of this up-date is the time period when grays were hunted from shore stations off the coast of the Californias. The era extended from the early 1850's until the late 1880's.

The shore whaling industry was fascinating, lucrative and poorly documented. To supplement our very sparse documentation, I am requesting that the residents of this area (Carmel was one of the first shore whaling stations) who have any information (letters, newspaper clippings or photographs) dealing with these times, to please contact me. Any documents made available to me will be handled with great care and returned promptly, as soon as they have been read and evaluated.

We believe this book will be a valuable reference for scholars and researchers. Anyone who can assist in this endeavor will be making a real contribution to our present knowledge.

All sources contributing information will be acknowledged. The deadline for the manuscript is May 16, 1982.

Please send the information to: Hazen Sayers, P.O. Box 22300, San Diego, CA 92122.

Thank you.

Supports Bruno's strikers

Dear Editor:

I have been a customer of Bruno's grocery store ever since it became Bruno's and I love each and every one of my friends, like Judy McCurdy, who have worked there so long, and it would take more than an act of Congress to get me to cross that line.

They are friends of mine, and I know them. It is impardonable the way they have been treated, and what they have been asked to give up. For Judy this means everything she has worked for for 26 years. Let's all of us stick by Judy and our long time friends. For they will win, and I'll be right there in the front row to cheer them on, and to celebrate when they win.

League explained to Peters

Dear Editor:

I sent a letter to Mr. William Peters on Sept. 12, 1981, when he questioned Jean Bleick's request to be included in a meeting with the Pebble Beach Corporation and the Del Monte Property Owners Association. The League wanted to participate in discussions of the draft Del Monte Forest Land Use Plan rather than just react to it. We were denied that request. The League continues to be concerned about public participation in matters pertaining to public policy as we stated at that time.

This letter clearly stated the procedure that a person must follow when representing the League whether it is writing a letter, reading a statement, or requesting to be included in a meeting. The board thought this letter had clarified league process to Mr. Peters.

Jean Bleick speaks only when requested to do so by the board of directors. She is well informed and always careful about following the required procedures when representing the organization. Mrs. Bleick is a past president and a highly valued member of the League of Women Voters.

Thanks to volunteers

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank the volunteers in our community who collected funds for the American Heart Association during February, Heart Month, and the many people who gave so generously. In a time when we are all experiencing increased costs of living, it is "heartwarming" to see such strong community support for this cause.

The Central Mission Trails Chapter of the American Heart Association which serves Monterey, San Benito and Santa Cruz Counties has given nearly $600,000 for heart research since 1965. The chapter also sponsors a variety of educational programs for the public and health professionals. Funds for research and education come from one source: the citizens of our community. The Central Mission Trails Chapter receives ongoing support from the community throughout the year through memorial donations and special fundraisers.

Heart and related cardiovascular diseases are responsible for one out of every two deaths in the United States. The American Heart Association is dedicated to reducing premature death and disability due to heart disease and has been making progress toward this goal during the past years.

Thank you to the large number of you who have joined with the Heart Association in the battle against our nation's number one killer: heart disease.

General plan committee can provide balance

By ROBERT MISKIMON

ARMED with more money for its consulting firm and more time for study of Carmel planning problems, the General Plan Advisory Committee has gone back to work in earnest.

One of the first items on its agenda is a public opinion sample in the form of a questionnaire to be sent to all registered voters. That will go hand-in-hand with a second questionnaire to be sent to business persons in Carmel.

With the additional time and money afforded by the city council for completion of the task, and with the broad kind of public involvement which is possible through the questionnaires, crucial issues which will face the village in the next 20 years will receive the kind of attention they deserve.

The volume of response to these questionnaires may prove overwhelming, if the historic public concern of Carmelites is any indication. The additional 10 months will probably be needed just to sort through public response and to revise the general plan accordingly.

With this new perspective and new sense of direction — as well as with new members — the General Plan Advisory Committee can perform an invaluable service to Carmel. It can provide a blueprint for what kind of town Carmel will be for all citizens for the next 20 years.

More importantly, the balanced method by which the General Plan Committee has set its sights on a complete inventory of the needs of Carmel — including the business community — could and should go a long way toward putting to rest those troublesome and time-consuming arguments over business versus residential interests.

That, in itself, may be just as great a contribution to the public welfare as the final shape of the general plan.

Another way to control erosion of Carmel River

Dear Editor:

The following is an additional comment added to the many already in print relative to the control of the bank erosion of the Carmel River.

Anyone who has purchased property bordering the river should have been aware of the fact that a river, especially in flood, can be a problem. Although one may sympathize with the property owner who sees his property being washed downstream it should be the responsibility of the property owner to protect his own property. This is the price the property owner pays for the esthetic values of owning property bordering a stream as well as the ability to advertise the property as bordering a stream in the event of his selling the property.

In the normal course of events a river not confined by rock or concrete embankments tends to wander and in many cases assumes a snake-like pattern. A good case in point as to how a river changes its path over the years can be seen in Garland Park. At one time the Carmel River path was up close to what is now the beginning of the higher elevations; since then it was snaked back and forth until it now runs where it does.

How best can the Carmel River be kept within less-damaging potentials to property owners, bridges and highways? To confine its natural flow within concrete would represent a prohibitive cost, cut the percolation factor into the aquifer and seriously disrupt the fish habitat. Rock rip-rap at the worst points of erosion would be of great value as long as one realizes when a fast moving body of water hits an immovable object the force of the stream is diverted to the opposite bank.

There has been much weeping and wailing about the natural growth that has suffered from the drought periods in past years and the possible further loss of trees when the new Cal-Am wells are in full operation. If one were to study the tree growth that has suffered in the past he would soon realize that these dead snags that show so prominently in Garland Park are a species of weak nature.

This undesirable poplar has no value as lumber or even as firewood due to its nature. The writer questions if these dead snags died due to the drought and believes the evidence of root-rot was the real cause. The floating logs one sees at high water time are largely these self-same snags and are the items that can cause serious log jams on such bridges as pass over the river. The writer also feels it is distinctly the responsibility of the property owner with river bank property to see that these dead trees are removed from any possible float-away in high water.

EROSION of the banks of the Carmel River caused by the death of riparian vegetation, which stabilizes the river channel when healthy. Restoration of the river vegetation has been proposed to help return the river to a state of health.

What we should be interested in are those species of natural growth that are doing very well along the river, especially those that do not require the "babying" of an irrigation system to keep them living. As for the riverbank itself, there is no growth to compare with the naturally occurring willows. These willows have a vast intertwining root system that defies uprooting in flood time plus the ability to bend with the rush of water and not offer the resistance and tendency to uproot as some of the more rigid species.

Observe the willows growing in the gravel bars in mid-stream where they are subjected to the full force of the water. The beauty of the willow is that it can be easily rooted by simply thrusting a twig into the soil or gravel along the river banks. Therefore, when nature does give us an ideally suited species for the purpose of riverbank control let us not waste any time and false tears for weak species that cannot "take it." Aside from the willows one will find several natives that will do very well for upper bank control without irrigation if planted at the start of the rainy season so as to be well-established come dry weather.

INCUMBENT Mayor Barney Laiolo got upset over a comma in a campaign card distributed by challenger Charlotte Townsend. His honor thought the card read as if Ms. Townsend is the incumbent mayor.

MAYORAL candidate Charlotte Townsend — the only woman candidate for council or mayor in the April 13 city elections — erased some commas from her campaign cards and agreed to change any future printings to satisfy Mayor Laiolo.

The great Carmel comma dispute

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE FIRST droplets of blood have been shed in the race for mayor of Carmel.

And the clash wasn't over some burning issue like business vs. residents, parking, or water allocations.

It was all about a comma.

That's right — a comma in a postcard-sized piece of campaign literature.

Incumbent Mayor Barney Laiolo became disturbed last week over a line in a campaign card distributed by mayoral candidate Charlotte Townsend.

The line says: "Elect Charlotte Townsend, Mayor."

The use of a comma after Ms. Townsend's name — according to Laiolo — indicates she is the incumbent in the April 13 election and that makes the card a bit of deceptive campaign literature.

Laiolo also objected to three lines of identification with Ms. Townsend's name and address on the back of the card, which Laiolo charged were printed in less than the legally-required type size.

'You know, there's two kinds of women: the nice ones, and the ones who'll cut your throat when your back is turned.'

So the mayor called the Monterey County Elections Department to voice his protest. Registrar of Voters Ross Underwood referred Laiolo to the district attorney's office. Dist. Atty. William Curtis then called Robert Wellington, an attorney and Ms. Townsend's campaign treasurer.

Both Curtis and Underwood gently encouraged the feuding mayoral candidates to work something out between themselves.

"The comma indicates she's presently the mayor," Laiolo told the Pine Cone/Outlook. "It's a deceiving kind of thing. I called Wellington and told him it was unfair.

I checked with the elections department; they said it looked like it was deceptive advertising."

Laiolo said he had passed copies of Ms. Townsend's card to some 20 persons, and "16 or 17 said, 'Goddam, she's not the mayor!' I think it was done with a little bit of malice."

Laiolo said he believes there may be a female conspiracy behind the errant comma.

"I don't put anything beyond some of those women who are behind her (Townsend)," Laiolo said. "They're connivers. I don't support underhanded tactics. You know, there's two kind of women: the nice ones, and the ones who'll cut your throat when your back is turned."

Ms. Townsend said she had 1,000 of the cards printed for distribution during her campaign and "I don't have a great deal of money, but I would have these reprinted if that's necessary. I've presented this card to dozens of people, and no one has said anything about it."

She checked with the printer who produced the cards, and found that the identification portion on the back of the card was set in 8 point type — larger than the legally-required 6 point type.

"I WAS SO upset about this because Barney called the district attorney and the elections department, instead of me, and I've known him for years," Ms. Townsend said.

"He's absolutely convinced that (Councilwoman) Helen Arnold had something to do with this," she added, in reference to one council member who has clashed often with Mayor Laiolo. "I haven't spoken to her more than once or twice in the last two months."

in the race for mayor of Carmel. County officials left the feuding candidates to work out an agreement among themselves.

Ms. Townsend said she personally erased commas from some of the cards, and one of her supporters suggested making the comma into a period — a change which was made on other cards. She said she is willing to do whatever Laiolo wants — within reason — to make sure "everything is abundantly clear."

Registrar of Voters Ross Underwood said the elections code "doesn't cover misleading advertising, but the complaint doesn't seem to fit into that category. The DA's office didn't think it was substantial enough to bring forth prosecution."

"It certainly doesn't harm the integrity of the election process. There would be no reason to throw out the election because of it," Underwood said.

Dist. Atty. William Curtis acknowledged that he had discussed the matter with Laiolo by telephone.

"I suggested to him that he call Wellington and discuss it with him," Curtis said. "I have not passed on whether it is a violation, nor have I done any research on it. If it is a clear violation, I'm sure it will be corrected. Nobody wants to violate the law."

Wellington, who serves as city attorney for Marina and is conversant with municipal law, said Laiolo's complaint "is about as picayune or technical as you can get."

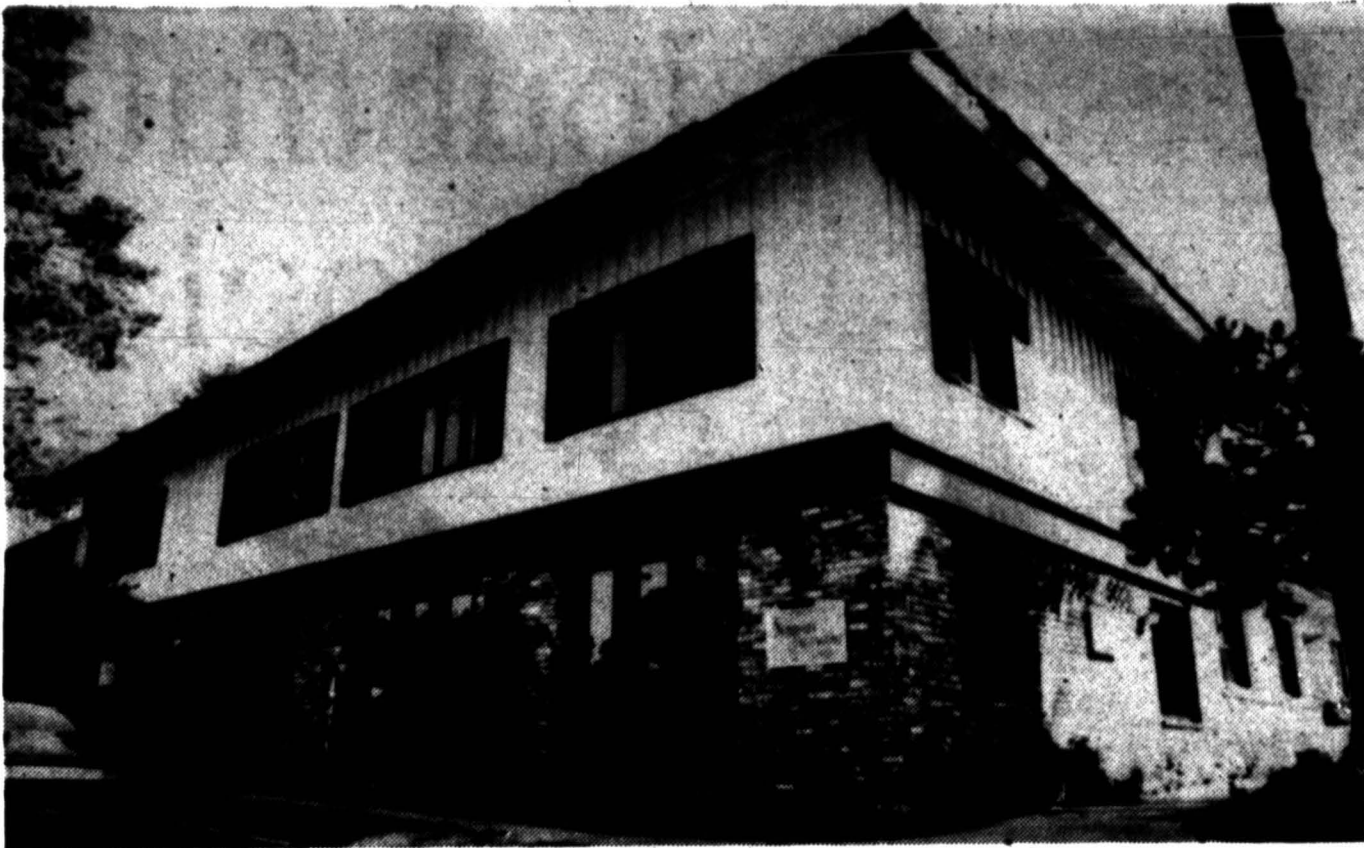

"It's pretty clear that no one could be misled if they read the thing," Wellington said. "There's such a knowledgeable electorate in Carmel, with such a high percentage of registered voters, I don't see how anyone could think that Charlotte Townsend is the mayor."

"When she does some new cards, we'll take the commas out. I hope they don't send her to jail for this," Wellington added.

"Mrs. Townsend has distributed the offending cards with a separate sheet which details her education and qualifications, and which lists her occupation as 'President, Carmel Sanitary District (and) housewife.'"

Ms. Townsend said the whole episode "typifies the kind of problems we have in city hall, where we're doing this sort of thing instead of taking care of city business. I would hope the candidates would concern themselves with the issues, rather than niggling details," she added.

PLANS TO rebuild Carmel Sands Lodge and Simpson's Restaurant, northeast corner of Fifth and San Carlos, are expected to be presented to the planning commission Wednesday, March 24.

Planners to review design for rebuilding Carmel Sands

A PLAN TO rebuild the Carmel Sands Lodge and adjoining Simpson's Restaurant will be presented to the planning commission March 24 for conceptual design review.

Applicant and co-owner Matthew Little said he wants conceptual approval from planners before time and money are spent on specific plans to rebuild the complex at the northeast corner of San Carlos and Fifth.

Little applied last year to turn the lodge into a time-share project. However, after several public hearings and a moratorium, the City Council banned time-share projects.

At that time, the estimated cost of the work was between $2.5 and $3 million, but Little said he could not price future work until specific plans are developed.

Little said he does not have plans to add to the current 42 units or increase the capacity of the 80-seat Simpson's Restaurant, which adjoins the lodge.

"We just want to rebuild the hotel and restaurant. It will be completely rebuilt," he said.

Little also plans to rebuild the nearby offices that formerly housed his business, the Carmel Insurance Agency.

Plans also include addition of an underground parking facility, he said.

"If they like what we do, the next question is only how much can we have?" Little said.

The project would have to receive final design approval from the planning commission before construction begins.

IN OTHER ACTION, planners are expected to hold a public hearing on a proposed ordinance that would ban earth satellite stations that receive television signals, unless they are smaller than 30 inches in diameter.

A study session on the proposed ordinance was held March 17. Planning Director Bob Griggs said the ordinance was proposed because of the possible "visual impact" on Carmel.

Earth satellite stations can receive up to 94 stations, which are transmitted via 12 satellites that orbit the earth, according to Paul Hariri, who owns Satellite Earth Stations of Carmel Valley. He said costs for the stations vary from $2,995 to $8,500.

The commission will also tackle the long-standing issue of regulation of mini-marts.

Planners are expected to hear a proposed ordinance from Commissioner John Logan that would limit the size and number of large buildings that may be subdivided into smaller shops.

Logan's proposal would require a mini-mart to provide 30 percent public access space, but with a reduction of 5 percent per space if there is a minimum number of shops.

The proposed ordinance would also regulate the minimum shop size at 150 sq. ft. with an average retail space size of 600 sq. ft.

The ordinance would regulate enclosed buildings and the open courtyard-type of mini-mart.

A moratorium on subdivision of retail space into smaller shops is currently in effect.

Planners were expected to review the proposed ordinance last night, March 17, before holding the public hearing March 24.

State considers water project at hearing in Sacramento

ALL CHALLENGES to the Carmel Sanitary District water reclamation project are expected to be swept aside by the state Water Resources Control Board when it meets in Sacramento today (March 18).

The state board indicated in a special workshop March 3 that it would reject an appeal by the Pebble Beach Sanitary District to review the Area of Special Biological Significance designation for Carmel Bay.

However, since that meeting was just an informational workshop, a formal vote was delayed until today.

The Carmel Sanitary District Board of Directors will discuss the state vote and its implications when the board meets at 1:30 p.m. Friday, March 19, at City Hall. The meeting was delayed one day so officials could attend the state session.

If the state does reject the claim by Pebble Beach, the water reclamation project will be faced with the challenge of funding.

District Manager Michael Zambory said the state will meet in September to decide whether to allocate grant funds for the local project.

The water reclamation project will provide tertiary-treated water for the irrigation of Pebble Beach golf courses. Pebble Beach Co. (formerly Pebble Beach Corp.) has signed several agreements with Carmel for purchase of the reclaimed water.

Pebble Beach Sanitary District President Richard Lord has indicated the board may appeal the state ruling, but a final decision has not been made.

Pebble Beach has a contract with Carmel for disposal of effluent. Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver has ordered Pebble Beach to pay one-third the costs of the water reclamation project.

The project is designed to comply with a state mandate that the district cease discharge of effluent into Carmel Bay from May through October.

IN OTHER action, the Carmel Sanitary District will consider a petition by its employees asking that they withdraw from the Social Security system.

The district contributes about $29,000 into the Social Security system and the 20 employees pay the rest, Zambory said.

The employees have asked that the district use the $29,000 to increase retirement benefits.

When a worker retires, he receives 2 percent of his gross salary for each year of service. If a worker is employed for 30 years, he would receive 60 percent of his salary upon retirement.

The employees want the district to use the Social Security funds to increase the 2 percent figure to 2.5 percent, Zambory said.

Under federal law, public employees may withdraw from Social Security. However, it takes two years for the withdrawal to become effective, Zambory said.

Directors may also review proposals for a new office site if an appraiser's report is completed in time.

The sites include a portion of private property near the intersection of Rio Road and Carmel Rancho Boulevard; an area on district property behind the Mission Field ballpark backstop; and another site on district property at the northeast corner of the sewage treatment plant, off of Highway 1 just north of the Odello west property.

Huge increase in use of state parks

Last year California state parks, beaches, and recreation areas experienced the largest annual attendance increase in history and the largest annual percentage increase in the last 20 years, according to Department Director Pet Dangelmond Jr.

The State Park System had 66,578 million visitor-days in 1981. Compared with 59,482 million in 1980 there was an increase of 11.9 percent.

Day use, including picnic-ing, hiking, swimming, boating, beach use and sightseeing, increased more than 12 percent — from 53,248 million in 1980 to 59,843 million in 1981. Camping increased eight percent — from 6,234 million visitor days in 1980 to 6,735 million in 1981.

State park attendance has increased three times as fast as the state population during the last 20 years. The population increased 46 percent.

Carmel School trustees are doubtful about 7th period at middle school

By ROBERT MISKIMON

A MAJORITY of Carmel Unified School District trustees believes the district can't afford to add a seventh period at Carmel Middle School next fall.

The board of education will review preliminary budget figures for the 1982-83 fiscal year at 3:30 p.m., March 22 at Carmel Middle School. Trustees hope to get a clearer picture of the feasibility of another period when those figures are available.

Already, protests have been heard loud and clear from teachers and parents over the possibility that the Carmel Middle School day might be extended by another period. No decision has been made by the board, however.

There seems to be some basic misunderstanding over the proposal to add a seventh period, says board president Ken White.

"About two months ago, the board members all drew up a list of what we might like to have in the budget, if we could afford it," White said.

"We discussed what each board member wanted. Someone said it would be nice to build a new stadium and gym, but we certainly can't afford that. It was basically a wish budget, because we still have no estimate of income at this point.

"A lot of energy has been expended by people who apparently don't understand that. If the district can afford it, I'd be delighted. But I don't think the district can afford it at this time."

At the March 9 meeting of the board of education, teachers vigorously protested the addition of another period at the middle school.

Forty elementary school teachers presented the board with a letter which expressed concern about possible erosion of educational quality in the district.

Addition of a seventh period "can only mean less money to support existing programs throughout the district, and we can foresee a 'watering down' of the outstanding educational program Carmel has traditionally provided," the elementary teachers said.

"If we do not continue to support and fund our programs to support essential basic skills and work habits, expanding at the upper levels is like building a house without a strong foundation."

Twenty-seven Carmel Middle School teachers presented trustees with their own letter of protest:

"The idea of adding more programs when the ones we already have are being eroded does not seem reasonable. If anything is added at Middle School it should be more personnel in support services — library services, grounds and classroom maintenance, counseling assistance, secretarial services for teachers."

ADDITION of more classes in the middle school program would mean that more teachers would be required to teach in subjects outside their areas of expertise, the middle school teachers said.

"A faculty which has been under particular stress for several years should not be asked to offer more and more. This would merely result in students receiving less and less."

Middle school teachers suggested that music could be offered during an optional period from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m., before the start of the regular school day so that "parents and students who wished to take advantage of this program could do so without disrupting the balanced schedule of the entire school."

Former trustee Ron Parravano told the board he was "surprised and disappointed that this has reared its ugly head again."

"A faculty which has been under particular stress for several years should not be asked to offer more and more. This would merely result in students receiving less and less."

"You're looking at some serious problems at the elementary level. You'll need some money to bail out your elementary program. This is nothing more than window-dressing and we can't afford window-dressing. I really hope you don't do it."

Larry Morago, a parent of children at Carmel Woods and Carmel Middle schools, also said the district can't afford to add the seventh period.

"We don't have $90,000," Morago said, a reference to the estimated savings the district will realize through closure of Carmelo and

AN EXPANDED schedule to add a seventh period at Carmel Middle School would benefit the music program, under the direction of Karen King.

Woods schools next fall. "We have less money and severe needs."

Trustee Joan Cathey also said she doubts that the district can afford to add a seventh period at the middle school — no matter how that extra time is structured.

"We can't afford a seven period day, so I don't think it will be an issue," said Reverend Cathey. "There has never been any intent to add another period without adding more teachers. Our discussions were that we would only do it if we added more teachers."

"We also want to add teachers at the elementary level. I would not vote for it if we didn't add teachers."

Trustee Barbara Sanford believes the district can afford to add a seventh period, if the board makes up its mind to do so.

"We can afford it," she told the Pine Cone/Outlook. "It's a question of where we want to put our values. I'm for it, but I may have to compromise."

Mrs. Sanford challenged administrators' estimates that it would cost $102,000 to add the seventh period in September. The actual cost, she said, would be more like $60,000.

"They (administrators) played the same game last year," she said. "It only cost us $29,000 to go from five to six periods at the middle school this year."

"WHAT ARE WE here for?" Mrs. Sanford asked rhetorically. "Pacific Grove and Monterey are offering it. It looks like the kids come last. We still haven't eliminated any administrators. We have the money in there; it all depends on what your priorities are."

Trustee Harold Santee also said he doesn't think the district can afford to add another period at middle school.

"I'd like to offer it, but I don't think we can afford it," Santee said. "It's always great to offer more options but we're not a rich district, and we have to strengthen what we have first."

Trustee Doyle Clayton said he hasn't made up his mind on the issue, and won't do so until after more accurate budget figures are presented to the board of education March 22.

"The information we get at that study session will be very important in deciding whether we can afford it," Clayton said. "I'm in favor of putting additional teachers at the elementary level."

Supt. Bill Rand said preliminary estimates are that an additional, optional period at the middle school would cost $102,000. Most of the cost — $87,000 — would be for additional teachers; additional bus service would cost an additional $11,000; and extra supplies would be $4,200, Rand said.

Curriculum Director Rich Hawkins said a seventh period "would be music-oriented" if the district chose to provide it next year. He noted that before passage of Prop. 13 "we always had a six-period day starting at 9 a.m., and a zero (optional) period."

"There was never a full program for that zero period. There were some academic offerings, like social studies and English, but it was mostly for music."

The middle school program was reduced to five periods in 1978-79, with the school day from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. In 1980-81, the middle school went to a six period program, with an optional period.

This year the middle school went from an optional six-period schedule to a full six-period day, but wiped out the optional period, Hawkins said.

Robles Del Rio Lodge for sale

By FLORENCE MASON

Robles Del Rio Lodge, the Carmel Valley property purchased by Howard and Eleanor Silberman last summer, is for sale.

It isn't the same place, however. Its eight acres of living accommodations, restaurant, pool and beautiful land available for still more development have been upgraded and enhanced by the enthusiastic owners.

According to Georgia Dunlavy, Realtor with Carmel Realty Co., who is handling the sale, the out-of-town owners and their two sons, who had been managing the Lodge for them, now have other interests that are taking precedence. After their investment of more than $1 million in improvements to the Lodge, they see it as an ideal facility for time-sharing, a health spa, a dude ranch, or a lodge. Sprinklers were installed throughout, and new lawns, there is new tiling around the pools, a hot tub, massage rooms and sauna, among other things the Silbermans accomplished in less than a year.

For the future: there are three level lots suitable for duplexes or houses and there is a permit for 10 additional units.

Built in 1932, the Lodge is now for sale at an asking price of $3,250,000.

DOUGHNUTS, NOT HOLES

Other than the above, it's a little of this and a little of that this week; taken all together, the business news reminds me of that whimsical definition of an optimist:

'Twixt the optimist and pessimist
The difference is droll:
The optimist sees the doughnut
but the pessimist sees the hole.

IF TWO . . . WHY NOT THREE?

"For three years we've been so obsessed and possessed by this business that we haven't had time for anything else." That was Randy Inman, owner of the new Vitamin Center in The Crossroads, speaking for himself and co-owner Gary Huffine. "It's not quite true, however. Randy, who said he is single (eligible for anyone interested)" loves tennis and is an avid player. Gary, who is divorced, has two children. Both men are conscientious about keeping physically in tune. However, as owners of three stores now (the others are in Los Gatos and Capitola) it is certain that they don't have much time to spare.

The Vitamin Center carries herbs, minerals, other food supplements, natural shampoos, skin creams and cosmetics, as well as vitamins. They are on the shelves in a sparkling — clean, spacious store. Inman told me that the emphasis is on quality, but it's also a fact that the items are offered at discount prices.

Together, the two men have 15 years' experience in the field. Randy credits his partner with knowing the business from manufacture through distribution to retail sales. He was "the #3 man" for the Great Earth Vitamin chain in Southern California.

Randy Inman majored in modern foreign languages in college and studied in Europe. He indulges that interest now by going to foreign movies . . . when he has time.

PAPPAGALLO . . . EN FAMILIE

It's a mother and daughter business in The Barnyard, and the family involvement doesn't stop there.

Annette Alcocer and her mother, Jill Leach, are the new owners of the specialty shoe shop, Pappagallo, and Mrs. Alcocer is the manager. Douglas Leach, her father, is very much involved in the construction aspects of their remodeling. And to go back a step further . . . it was the fact that Rick Alcocer, Annette's husband, is working for Castle and Cook in Salinas that brought the young couple back here to make their home.

Both have solid backgrounds on the Peninsula. The Alcocers met here when Annette was a student at Santa Catalina School and Rick was at Robert Louis Stevenson. Jill Leach worked at Santa Catalina for 18 years, as head of the school's physical education department.

For the past five years Mrs. Leach has been keeping the books for her husband, a building contractor, and was also involved in decorating some of the properties with which he was concerned. So it is her decorating talents that are going into the remodeling at Pappagallo.

Mrs. Alcocer said that she and her mother wanted to do something together. When she was a student in business administration at the University of Southern California and working in retail shops, she became familiar with the Pappagallo shops in that area and so was particularly interested in those shoes and accessories. True to Pappagallo traditions, this Barnyard shop will go on selling only that make of shoe. However, they will add some classic sportswear, including Liberty of London, J.G. Hook and Sero. They visited a number of Pappagallo shops for ideas and by the time they have thoroughly converted the shop this summer, will have borrowed ideas and added their own special touches. Counted among the latter are some antique furnishings contributed by Jill Leach from her own collection.

RUSTICANA

The Davis-Holdship move mentioned in this column last week opened up a space that Ingrid Vernoes-Froehlich was happy to find. She is a young lady, originally from Germany, who hopes to open "Rusticana" around the middle of May. It will be on Mission between Fifth and Sixth.

Ms. Vernoes-Froehlich will offer wood and ceramic items, traditional patterns in porcelain, and later on, her own products from a small electric kiln. She will also have a few antiques.

Ms. Vernoes-Froehlich, who used to live in New York, has seven years' experience in business. She hasn't yet established residence in Carmel; when she has, we'll be talking with her to find out what brings her here, and more about her plans for the new shop.

WHO IS THE TINKER'S DAUGHTER?

"The Tinker's Daughter" turns out to be Catherine Colwell-Becher. It's a new business by that name that Ms. Colwell-Becher operates out of her Lincoln Street home.

In a way, it's related to her other activity as manager of the children's book store at Thinker Toys. Her main product is "prairie-type" dolls, with other items for grown-ups, including aprons, fabric boxes and pillow cases. As Ms. Colwell-Becher says: "Everything has ribbons and lace!" The dolls wear dresses, aprons and straw hats.

The idea for these dolls came to this enterprising businesswoman from the Tasha Tudor illustrations of children's books with which Ms. Colwell-Becher has become so familiar. She'll be taking them to some local shops for possible sale and they will also be shown at the Craft Fair to be held in Pacific Grove in conjunction with the Victorian Home Tour.

produce market in Carmel Valley Village is the result.

Tony and his wife, Judy, a supervisor for Santa Cruz Transit, are now the owners of their own market at 8 Delfino Place. They opened quietly last month.

The Mushroom Man is really the "mushroom family." Not only are both Tony and Judy Souza involved in the new market but also Judy's sister, Shirley Stroh, and her husband, Jerry. At present, all of them live in Watsonville, but the Strohs hope to move to the Carmel area before long.

"All kinds of fresh produce" is what is sold at The Mushroom Man, which takes over the space vacated by the Toby Jug liquor store. Mrs. Stroh said that almost all of it comes right from the Watsonville area, except for things that are out of season. They'll be adding trail mixes and dried fruits, too.

DON CAMPBELL, HONOREE

"One can be young at a hundred!"

That's a line from a play I had the fun of appearing in recently. It is proved again this week by Don D. Campbell, assistant manager of the Carmel office of Herma Smith Curtis real estate. Well — almost.

Campbell is only 92 years old. He has just been made an Honorary Life Member of the California Association of Realtors. To be eligible for the honor, one must have been in the real estate business for at least 25 years (it's 26 for Campbell) and be more than 75 years old.

Campbell, who has been with the Curtis organization three years, must believe in longevity. He has been a member of Lions 59 years, of the Masons and the Shrine, 50 years. He's just a beginner with the Monterey Council of the Navy League, where he has been treasurer for only 15 years.

IN NAME ONLY

There's a change for Carmel by the Sea Realty. It is now Carmel Professionals, Inc. The real estate firm at Fifth and Dolores took the action as the result of a law suit initiated by Carmel Realty Co. According to owner Arno Sarsi, the case had been in the courts several years, Carmel Realty claiming successfully that the names were too similar.

Sarsi, who has been in the real estate business in Carmel nearly five years, said that his sign, advertising and business cards would specify the nature of his business, now that the name does not make that obvious.

IT'S THE LAW

The ins and outs of using small claims court will be explained in a Monterey College of Law program Wednesday, March 24 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at the college, 498 Pearl St., Monterey.

This is one of a number of legal-related short classes, seminars and workshops in the college's new Community Legal Education Program. It is intended for businesses and individuals who need only a working understanding, rather than a professional mastery of the law and legal rights, remedies and processes.

The program on small claims court will be conducted by Municipal Court Judge Fred Novinger. Fee for attendance is $5.

"The Case of the Mysterious Gemstones"

by
Sam Jade,
Private Eye

It all started March 1, 1982. A contest was beginning to unfold at LaPorte's. The object was to guess the identity of 20 gemstones in a specially arranged display. All I'd have to do is to correctly guess more stones than anyone else. The winner was to receive a stunning blue-green tourmaline ring worth $1500.00 (not a bad bag of cherries!)

Upon my arrival at 165 Fountain Ave., Pacific Grove, the address of LaPorte's, I was made aware of the relevant details of the case: Persons 18 years or older, could participate, no purchase was necessary, and only one entry per person was to be accepted. Although I was told that I could participate anytime between March 1 and March 20, between the hours of 10:30 a.m. and 4:45 p.m., I was anxious to crack this case. After careful examination of the evidence, I quickly completed my entry form and submitted it to a staff member for validation.

March 23, 1982: I sat by my phone waiting for the call that would notify the winner — The phone rang...

Find out if you're a Sam Jade, by investigating "The Case of the Mysterious Gemstones" at LaPorte's.

State and federal budget cutbacks affect Carmel handicapped classes

By ROBERT MISKIMON

TWO HUNDRED handicapped students in special education programs in the Carmel Unified School District have become pawns in the great budget retreat of 1982.

Both the state and federal government have withdrawn funds for special programs for handicapped students which those governments mandated several years ago.

And the Carmel school district — faced with its own financial problems caused by enrollment declines and reduced revenues — must fill the budget gap to continue programs for the handicapped.

Status of special education funding is just one unknown factor the district faces in its 1982-83 budget.

The district has had to carry an increased share of costs for special programs for the handicapped since the federal government reneged on a 1975 commitment to fund 40 percent of handicapped programs, Curriculum Director Rich Hawkins said.

And now California may further cut its funds for special education of the handicapped, as a result of the budget crisis in Sacramento.

The bottom line is that the Carmel Unified School District may have to fork over an extra $26,000 in fiscal year 1982-83 to maintain current programs, Hawkins told the Board of Education at its March 9 meeting.

"With vastly increased program mandates accompanied by rapidly shrinking financial support from the state and federal agencies requiring the programs, the local education agency is in a very difficult spot," Hawkins said.

"The programs are badly needed and children of all ages have better services than they had 10 years ago. However, the financial base to support the program is inadequate."

'The local districts, having been required to provide the programs, suffered the financial loss that the state refused to pay.'

Board President Ken White reacted angrily to the news.

"It's unfortunate that special education is the target," White said. "It really irks me to the bone when state and federal governments come in and mandate certain levels of instruction and then back off and there's nothing we can do about it. This really irks me."

"We're left with a big appetite and not much funds to pay for these programs," Hawkins added.

Hawkins noted that when Congress passed the Education for All Handicapped Children Act in 1975, "the federal government promised to finance 40 percent of the cost of educating handicapped children."

That legislation greatly expanded the responsibility of the public schools to provide special programs for the handicapped; more handicapped students were entitled to a greater variety of programs and services, Hawkins noted.

STATE LAWS were then modified to conform with federal law; local school districts were told how many students they should serve and in what program areas.

Direction to local districts was provided by the California Master Plan for Special Education, which is "a well-formulated system for meeting the needs of students for special education," Hawkins said.

"By the second year of funding (1978-79) under the federal law, the federal government began retreating from its financial commitment. There were slight increases for a year or two and then no increase. Decreases are currently proposed by the federal administration," Hawkins said.

The Carmel Unified School District now receives less than 6 percent of handicapped program costs from the federal government. In fiscal year 1981-82, the total amount of federal support was $31,934, or about $170 for each handicapped student.

By 1980-81, all public school districts in California were required to develop handicapped programs — and were entitled to receive state funds — under revisions of the state master plan. State support was based on the individual district 1979-80 expenditures for special education, Hawkins said.

All districts were required to continue the same level of support for special education programs as provided in the 1979-80 school year.

"The state was supposed to pay the difference between the base year local contribution and the total cost less federal income and a few other adjustments. The total program was soon found to be too expensive across the state, so the state allocated 12 percent less money than provided by the formula," Hawkins said.

"The local districts, having been required to provide the programs, suffered the financial loss that the state refused to pay."

Last summer, new legislation was enacted which further reduced the state share of costs for special education but which did not reduce program requirements. One example of this was the 60 percent reduction in state support for summer school programs with no change in summer school attendance requirements, Hawkins said.

'We can't rob Peter to pay Paul any more,' Farr said. 'The state's broke.'

"State representatives openly admit that the new legislation was designed to cut the state's cost with little regard to how the local districts would be able to pay for mandated programs," he said.

Because of a revenue crunch at the state level, the Carmel school district has been notified that state support for special education will be reduced by 8.3 percent for 1981-82 — the current fiscal year — just 90 days before the start of another fiscal year.

THE AMOUNT of that reduction in state subsidies could total $26,418, which must be made up from local revenues.

"I have no idea what's going to happen for next year," Supt. Bill Rand said. "My guess is the state will reduce it to a certain extent. We're under contractual obligation to the employees in those programs to continue their services."

The district operates a class for severely handicapped students at Carmelo School, which currently has about five students enrolled, Hawkins said. A total of 135 handicapped students at six schools receive special services through the resource specialist program.

Sixty-five students receive speech therapy in district-operated programs, and another 10 work with an adaptive physical education teacher. A part-time technical aide at Captain Cooper School in Big Sur provides services to four handicapped children.

RIVER SCHOOL teacher Alys Bilesner assists a reading student in the resources specialist program.

Some handicapped students are enrolled in more than one class, but the actual number of students who receive special education services is "more than 200" district-wide, Hawkins indicated.

With projected state fund reductions, the local share will increase from $36,704 to $63,122 for the current fiscal year, Hawkins said.

The total program cost for 1981-82 is $540,000. The district's local general fund contribution required by law is $145,395. Federal revenue totals $31,934. State special education allocation funds were estimated at $318,294, but will be decreased to $291,876.

The district also receives $7,673 in average daily attendance (ADA) compensation based on the number of students in special education classes.

With projected state fund reductions, the local share will increase from $36,704 to $63,122 for the current fiscal year, Hawkins said.

"The solution lies with the Legislature," Hawkins informed the board.

"The local district cannot control the local general fund contribution with current program mandates, the current financial support formula and the pattern of deficit funding from the state."

Assemblyman Sam Farr of Carmel told the Pine Cone/Outlook he doubts that any change in state program requirements for handicapped education will be made this year.

"We'll just have to live with the law we've got until we find a better way of doing it," Farr said. "There's no quick fix, but that's what the school districts want. There's no change in the law that's going to happen between now and December."

Farr expressed the hope that the state could restore those funds to special education programs cut in the 1981-82 fiscal year "if Reagan economics works out."

"We can't rob Peter to pay Paul any more," Farr said. "The state's broke."

The bottom line is that Carmel Unified School District may have to fork over an extra $26,000 in fiscal year 1982-83 to maintain current programs, Hawkins told the Board of Education at its March 9 meeting.

Elizabeth Keatinge, 97, is an optimist

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

CARMEL ARTIST Elizabeth Keatinge celebrated her 97th birthday last Tuesday. Throughout the day her telephone rang with friends and loved ones calling to wish her well. Later that day many of those same people were guests at a party given in Elizabeth's honor by the Carmel Art Association.

Sitting by a crackling fire in the fireplace of her cozy Carmel home, Elizabeth looked back over her 97 years and commented that she has enjoyed every minute of it.

"I credit my longevity to my love of nature and the infinite beauty all around us," she said. "I also love people and being involved. There just isn't time in the day to do all the things I want to do."

Her clear skin and mischievous brown eyes are highlighted by her ample gray hair pulled back and worn in a chignon. Looking not a day over 60, she credits her youthful looks to the fact that she uses nothing more than bar soap and cold water on her skin. She says she has never used cosmetics of any kind.

"The best soap for your body is your way of thinking," Elizabeth firmly stated. "Good thinking makes you feel free. I'm optimistic because I see things as being good. For me, joy is getting up in the morning and plunging right into life."

Elizabeth was born in Corvallis, Ore., in 1885 and came to California in 1907. Her Irish heritage includes nobility and castles. The home which Elizabeth shares with longtime artist friend, Eugene Towne, is named "Ardnachree" after one of the family estates in Ireland of the same name.

"It means 'trees of my heart' in Irish," said Elizabeth. "I have great feelings for my family heritage and the beautiful old castles that are still standing."

Elizabeth and Eugene have known each other for more than 50 years. Elizabeth's oldest son was a high school classmate of Eugene's and it was this relationship which opened the door to the friendship between Eugene and Elizabeth. Their families knew each other in the 1880s and 1890s and during the 1930s Eugene came to live with Elizabeth and her late husband in Berkeley. The two artists frequently traveled to Carmel on painting expeditions. In 1967 after the death of Elizabeth's husband, they moved to Carmel.

CARMEL ARTIST Elizabeth Keatinge calls herself an optimist, and her cheerful philosophy is reflected in her youthful countenance. (Photos by Terri Lee Robbe).

LONGTIME friends Elizabeth Keatinge and Eugene Towne relax with one of Elizabeth's recent water color paintings.

"Elizabeth and I are just a couple of old roue's milling around," laughed Eugene, adding that the two of them had once hitchhiked to Oregon to see Elizabeth's parents and to enjoy a painting expedition.

Elizabeth uses watercolors to paint landscapes and florals. Eugene, a spry 74, is also a watercolorist and paints landscapes, seascapes and desert scenes. Their combined award ribbons for their paintings take up a corner of the spacious living room.

ELIZABETH FIRST started painting at age 10. Her mother, a cartoonist, encouraged her. "But it was nature that really pointed me to my art career," Elizabeth said.

Her love of nature is very much in evidence today. An early riser, she spends the first part of the morning reading and meditating. Then, carrying a bag of nuts for the squirrels and seed for the birds, she takes a long morning walk. Much of the two and one half lots on which her home sits is covered with gardens of flowers and vegetables, all tenderly cared for by Elizabeth.

"There's nothing I love more than gardening," Elizabeth's face becomes animated. "Until recently I did all the gardening myself but now I have a gardener who comes once a week."

Elizabeth is also a writer and is currently working on her memoir and recording her thoughts on life.

Although Elizabeth and Eugene admit they no longer paint every day, they both say they enjoy going on location to work. Some of their favorite spots are Carmel beach, Big Sur and Point Lobos.

"Carmel is absolutely teeming with things to capture on canvas," Elizabeth emphasized. "I love painting sand dunes, the pine and cypress tress and have done several paintings of the beautiful old Carmel Mission."

Elizabeth was on the board of directors for the Carmel Art Association for many years. Her work is shown in the Association's monthly exhibit. Eugene's works are shown at the Association and also at the Maxwell Galleries in San Francisco. Both artists exhibited at the Pebble Beach Gallery for many years.

When asked who does the cooking, Eugene laughed and said: "Both of us. But when one does the cooking then the other is stuck with the dishes."

Elizabeth recently had a complete health check-up and is proud of the fact that she can eat anything and everything she desires. "That includes plenty of salt, sugar and all those good things," she laughed. "My doctor said that the only thing wrong with me was that I had a run in my stocking."

Elizabeth's life has run the gamut from the horse and buggy days to the space age. "I'm an optimist and I've had the best of both worlds," she said. "I believe the world is going in a good direction. It's just in a normal phase of transition like it's always been and will always be. But it's good."

She recalled her childhood when the family's mode of transportation was a horse and buggy. "My dad bought an old Irish gig on a clipper ship out of Ireland," she remembered. "Only one horse was used and as the family grew the girth lifted the horse's legs right off the ground."

When asked about her feelings on death Elizabeth's eyes twinkled with merriment. "That's nothing to fret about," she said. "I believe we just sluff off the old body like a coat and go on — continuing on the same path. We're just like the flowers that come up ever spring. We don't just vanish."

DOES SHE believe in leprechauns? "Absolutely," came the answer in a most sincere manner. "We had a haunted glen on our property in Oregon and we children frequently saw the little people. They were nothing unusual to us."

For the past 15 years both Elizabeth and Eugene have donated paintings to the annual auction at Beacon House, an alcoholism rehabilitation center in Pacific Grove. Last Saturday the two artists attended the organization's annual auction and dinner at Rancho Canada and Elizabeth was introduced and received a standing ovation from the 400 guests. She was also presented with a birthday cake decorated with 97 glowing candles.

Along with her numerous daily activities, Elizabeth is busy compiling five 12 inch 24 inch scrapbooks for her four living children. One son is deceased. The books filled with old photographs and clippings cover the history of both the Armstrong and Keatinge families. "My mother's genealogy goes back to around the 900s in Ireland," she said. Elizabeth added: "That includes kings and castles."

Eugene's family founded Eugene, Oregon.

Both artists are rightfully proud of their art work. What amazes Elizabeth is that her first exposure came when she was asked to exhibit a piece of her work at the San Francisco Museum of Art. "It was a national watercolor show in 1957, she recalled. "I was totally surprised and delighted."

From that time Elizabeth showed her work professionally. Over the years she has had numerous exhibits of her work in such galleries as the San Francisco Museum of Art, the de Young Memorial Museum in San Francisco and the Oakland Art Museum.

She is currently working on a floral requested by the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art for their permanent collection. Along with all of her daily activities she tries to leave time to enjoy reading the works of such greats as Tennyson, Emerson, Shakespeare, "and I also read the Bible and the Yellow Pages," she added.

When asked what she plans to do on her 100th birthday, Elizabeth laughed. "At a recent reception honoring Ansel Adams he put his arms around me and said: 'You and I are going to be around for a long time Elizabeth and we're going to enjoy every minute of it.' The most I can add to that is that I'm going to have a very good time."

Thanking Eugene for a delicious breakfast and some very strong coffee Elizabeth commented: "I have a wonderful friend in Eugene. We love to talk and never get bored. We freely criticize each other's work and debate the pros and cons of various subjects. But we're never bored. We just don't have time to dwell on the negative."

Don Freeman will seek DA's office

By ROBERT MISKIMON

TWO YOUNG women driving in a car on Carmel Valley Road one night are arrested for passing another vehicle within 100 feet of an intersection.

Although the offense is an infraction, not punishable by a jail term, the district attorney's office presses the case to trial — and loses.

In a Monterey restaurant, two patrons order a steak dinner. While waiting for their steaks, the two eat their salads and drink wine. When the steaks arrive, the patrons object that the entrees are not cooked to their specifications.

The two diners pay for their wine and salads but refuse to pay for their steaks. The restaurant manager calls the police, and the district attorney's office presses charges.

A three-day jury trial ensues — complete with photographs of the steaks as evidence — after which the jury returns an acquittal verdict against the hapless restaurant patrons.

These are but two instances which illustrate the topsy-turvy priorities of Monterey County Dist. Atty. William Curtis, says Don Freeman, the Carmel attorney who will challenge Curtis for the job of chief law enforcement officer in the county June 8.

Curtis, who was first elected district attorney in 1970 and who took office on Jan. 4, 1971, has never faced a challenger in any prior election.

"The DA's office has to treat everyone equally, whether it's white collar or blue collar crime. It hasn't gone far enough to look into white collar crimes, like embezzlement."

Freeman, a Carmel resident since 1972, is the counsel for the Carmel Sanitary District, and serves as city attorney for Seaside. He has been a member of the Board of Trustees of Monterey Peninsula College since 1977, and he has been president of the Board of Directors of the Monterey County Legal Aid Society since last July.

Freeman is also a board member of the Monterey Peninsula Youth Project and a former chairman of that joint powers agency. His decision to challenge Curtis came at the urging of many citizens and attorneys after he withdrew as a candidate for Monterey County Superior Court last week.

"Some people contacted me about six months ago to ask me to run for district attorney, but I wasn't interested at that time, Freeman told the Pine Cone/Outlook.

"I had submitted my name for a judicial appointment by Governor Brown for the vacancy created by the resignation of Judge Barelli," Freeman said. Then, after Governor Brown appointed attorney John Anton to the bench, Freeman decided "if I was willing to submit my name for appointment, I should be willing to stand for election."

BUT THEN Freeman withdrew and filed instead for the office of district attorney. Why the sudden change of heart?

"I did some real soul-searching, and I realized that if it had been me that was appointed, I would have wanted the opportunity to bring my thoughts and philosophy to the bench without having to stand for election right away. Anton was only appointed about a month ago; he hasn't had time to establish a track record."

Freeman said he was prompted to reconsider his candidacy for district attorney by "a tremendous number of phone calls — both from the legal community and from citizens I didn't even know" who encouraged him to run.

Most of the concerns expressed by those who urged him to run centered on three areas:

- The degree of efficiency in operation of the district attorney's office.
- An increase in incidence and seriousness of crime reported in Monterey County.
- A perception that the district attorney's office is not politically impartial.

"There are many cases that the DA's office handles that perhaps cost the taxpayers more than the benefit they gain," Freeman said. He pointed to the two cases which involved the diners and the motorists, as examples of this concern.

"The DA's office has to treat everyone equally, whether it's white collar or blue collar crime. It hasn't gone far enough to look into white collar crimes, like embezzlement."

Freeman said a great number of those who called him expressed a concern that the DA's office has, as he puts it, "too much in the way of politics attached to it. They said they were disappointed with the district attorney; very few having had any actual contact with the office."

Freeman acknowledged that there are some areas of operation in the district attorney's office with which he is unfamiliar, but said his greatest strengths would be as an administrator.

"I'm a better administrator than he (Curtis) is, and being accountable for public funds in a number of positions for years has made me qualified for the job," Freeman said.

Freeman said the budget for the district attorney's office has risen steadily in recent years without any corresponding improvement in the crime rate or in the prosecution and conviction of criminals.

"I would not plea bargain to the benefit of the defendants," Freeman said. "If they plead guilty, they would have to suffer the consequences. As it is now, only 10 percent of the cases ever go to trial. I would allow my deputies to have freedom to negotiate a plea within the guidelines I'd set, but they'd have to have a damn good reason."

FREEMAN WOULD also like to establish a system whereby judges would have a report from the arresting officer at sentencing.

"My feeling is that police officers generally know something about the defendant and what that person actually does in the community," Freeman said. "Very little time is spent on sentencing, but the judge ought to have as much information as possible about what the police officer thinks about the defendant."

"That ought to be furnished to the judge before he sentences and possibly takes away someone's freedom. That's something the DA's office should do that I don't believe they do."

Community education about the causes and prevention of crime is another area in which the district attorney's office should be more active, Freeman said.

"I would have my deputies — and I would do it myself — speak to the schools about crime, about not getting involved, about apathy and the need to report crime, and about the need to support the police. I'd like to help people develop alternatives to crime through education and employment."

Freeman believes the arresting police officer is entitled to be informed about the disposition of the cases he handles.

"The best reason I have for running was when I got a call from a police officer who told me this is the most efficient district attorney we've had because whenever the police have something, the DA always files charges," Freeman observed.

"But there's a lot of time, money and effort being spent on crimes that are trivial and harassing, more than anything else. I would like the officer to know if a case is filed, whether there is a conviction, if a plea is negotiated, or if the case is dismissed, why there is a dismissal."

Freeman said he hopes that the voting public will take the time to analyze the issues and to listen to the candidates, particularly in the election for district attorney.

"If a person is willing to take risks for a public office, then the public ought to take the time to listen to the candidates," Freeman said. "I understand that petitions are already circulating for endorsement of the incumbent among the police departments."

Dist. Atty. William Curtis denied any knowledge of such petitions, and said Freeman "apparently has damn little knowledge of the office" of district attorney. Curtis said he has received the endorsement of the Police Chiefs Association and added that he currently serves as president of the California District Attorney's Association.

challenger to incumbent William Curtis since he took office in 1971. (Michael Gardner photo).

Festive luncheon honors volunteers

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

VIRGINIA STANTON HOSTS LUNCHEON AT CYPRESS POINT COUNTRY CLUB

No doubt about it. Virginia Stanton, who was party editor for House Beautiful for many years, is a most gracious hostess. Virginia is chairman of the Monterey County Committee of Guide Dogs for the Blind. As a wrap-up for the organization's year-end fund-raising efforts she hosted board and committee members and their spouses to an elegant luncheon at Cypress Point Country Club last Wednesday.

The weather was a bit dampish but everyone was in a festive mood including Lee Early, who commented that it was perfect golf weather.

Also in a good mood was Milt Coburn, who will be taking to the high seas for a six week cruise on April 9. Milt presented the group with a generous donation from the Maureen Church Coburn Charitable Trust and has promised to join the group for the annual bus trip to the San Rafael campus for the Guide Dog graduation ceremonies which will be held on June 19.

The bus trip promises to be a lot of fun. Along with enjoying lunch and watching the graduation ceremony the committee will present the Guide Dog organization with a check which includes proceeds from the successful cooking demonstrations recently presented by French Chef Jacques Pepin. The check will also include proceeds from various lectures given by Virginia throughout the year.

The ladies and gentlemen enjoyed the scrumptious luncheon in separate dining rooms so naturally there was a bit of hob-nobbing back and forth. Robert Stanton presided at the men's table.

It was good to see Robert McMahan at the luncheon. As I'm sure most of you already know, Robert recently lost his lovely wife, Kay. Kay was a charter member of the Monterey County Committee of Guide Dogs.

Others attending the affair included Mrs. Lee Early, Mrs. George Fletcher, Mrs. Taher Obaid, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Meyer, Mrs. Jessie Mennekin, Mrs. Kenneth Holland, Mrs. Helen Spangenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Raggett, Mrs. Laura Granito, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ragsdale, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Craig, Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Threadgill and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kakis.

CORNER BEEF AND CABBAGE FEED AT RED LION TAVERN

If you're wondering why so many people were wandering up San Carlos Street munching from paper plates last night then you were one of the unlucky ones who got left out of the big corner beef and cabbage feed at the Red Lion Tavern.

Each year on St. Patrick's Day, Don Turner, owner of the Lion, invites the public to enjoy a free dinner whipped together by all the employees as well as a few locals who simply like to help out.

This is the 17th year that Don has treated the public to a fun evening and it's a fact that each year the cooking pots get bigger. Ingredients for the wearin' of the green affair included 125 pounds of corner beef, 100 pounds of cabbage, 100 pounds of potatoes and 50 pounds of the rabbit's favorite food.

There was no lack of pixies and leprachauns as all the employees were dressed in appropriate green garb. There was also plenty of Irish whiskey, which raised the question whether or not you were really seeing green shamrocks, green balloons, green hors d'oeuvres—and maybe even a few little green men!

Applause to all those who helped with the decorating and cooking chores including Jack, Rosie and Ben, Gretchen, Jan and Ralph, Harvey, Steve, Matt, Renee, Marilyn, Marian, Harold the barber and all the other non-employees who pitched in to help out.

LUNCHEON TO HONOR PEGGY CARLIN

The Monterey Bay Chapter of the United Nations Association will hold a noon luncheon Thursday, April 1 to honor Peggy Carlin, UNA-USA vice-president. The luncheon will be held at the Outrigger Restaurant on Cannery Row, Monterey.

The $8.75 charge will include beverage, tax and tip. Reservations can be made by contacting Edward N. Wright at 2765 Ribera Road, Carmel, 93923 by March 26.

RLS STUDENTS CHOSEN FOR OVERSEAS PROGRAM

Gordon D. Davis, headmaster of Robert Louis Stevenson School, recently announced the selection by the English Speaking Union of Erin E. McFadden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McFadden of Pebble Beach and Steven C. Zahm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Zahm, also of Pebble Beach, for the 1982-83 Secondary School Exchange Program in Great Britain.

The ESU sponsors some 50 American students on scholarships from independent schools to spend a year with their contemporaries in a public school in Great Britain. Simultaneously, a group of British young men and women come to American schools on similar scholarships.

Miss McFadden and Zahm will learn in May the details of the school they will be attending. Two RLS graduates from Pebble Beach are in England: Ann Calhoon, who attends Dover College in Dover and Christopher Lord, who attends Clifton College in Bristol. Miss Calhoon will attend Princeton University and Lord will attend Dartmouth College this fall.

praiser. Hubbard also questioned whether the photographs produced by Mrs. Arnold accurately represent the property.

"It would appear that Mr. Brown has not read the proposed use permit provisions in your Local Coastal Program," Hubbard told the council. "It does not permit building down to the property line."

"I'm really astounded at your suggestion we're going to be building houses right on the property line. Three building sites instead of four were designed; I'm astounded to hear this is not acceptable."

Councilman Brown reiterated his hope that some funds could be found to purchase the property for open space.

"This is getting a little embarrassing," Councilman Brunn said. "Mike, you've been saying this for years and there's not a spark of interest, either here or in Sacramento. Now at the 12th hour you come up with this. I'm amazed and embarrassed."

The proposed amendment — after approval by a 3-2 vote of the council — now goes to the Coastal Commission for possible inclusion in the Carmel LCP.

Agencies will convene to discuss water issues

OFFICIALS of three government agencies will discuss cooperative water reclamation and conservation programs Wednesday, March 24.

The 3:30 p.m. session, which is open to the public, will be attended by officials from the Carmel Sanitary District, Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Board and the Monterey Regional Water Pollution Control Agency. The meeting will be at 220 Country Club Gate Center, Suite 34, Pacific Grove.

"The idea is that the agencies need a conservation and reclamation program that can be drawn up and eventually be used as a formal document for possible resolutions and ordinances," explained Michael Zambory, general manager of the Carmel Sanitary District.

Zambory said officials will discuss ways to cooperate in the areas of reclamation and conservation.

"From the conservation aspect, we'll be reviewing things that society has taken for granted for all these years. We have to work together to save water," he said.

Zambory said he thinks the three agencies need to develop a formal joint water policy. "We're one big family when it comes to water problems on the peninsula," he said.

Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Bruce Buel agrees that it is time for cooperation.

"The three agencies want to explore the possibility of developing reclamation and water conservation projects together," he said. "I think each agency understands it's to their benefit to cooperate."

Buel said a key discussion topic will be "what needs to be done and who is going to pay for it?"

Bob Jaques, acting manager for the Monterey Regional Water Pollution Control Agency, said he has not developed specific topics for discussion.

"We've all done independent studies on our own," he said. "We feel there are some things that may not be feasible by ourselves, but may be feasible with others."

Cultural commissioner appointed

It will be a "like mother, like daughter" situation at the Carmel Community and Cultural Commission when it meets tonight, March 18.

Suzanne DeClercque will be sworn in as a new member of the commission, replacing her mother, Dorothy Chapman, who has served four terms.

Mrs. DeClercque was raised in Carmel and returned to the town about 18 months ago. She is secretary to the Citizens Committee board.

"I have been interested in Carmel and the commission all along, even when I was away," she said. "I want to help out any way I can help Carmel."

Mrs. DeClercque was appointed by Mayor Barney Laiolo. A second commissioner, Bernard Van Horne, has submitted his resignation and is expected to be replaced in April.

In other action, the commission is expected to consider increased charges for organizations that use special equipment at Sunset Theater, to offset increased costs.

Because of a schedule conflict, the cultural commission session was changed to tonight from the original March 22 date.

Carmel youths to compete in gymnastics meet

Two Carmel-area youngsters will compete in the United States Gymnastics Federation Zone Championships in Monterey Saturday, March 20.

The competition will be used by Lars Rydell of Carmel and Chris Bosso of Carmel Valley to qualify for the state championships April 13 and 14.

Rydell and Bosso are members of the Monterey Gymnastics Center, which is the site for the competition Saturday. The center is at 220 Dela Vina, Monterey, behind Bekins Van Lines, near the intersection of Casa Verde Way and Del Monte. Admission is free.

Rydell, who won the 13-18 division at the Northern California Boys Association meet in Sunnyvale in February, was set back by a bout with chicken pox this week, but expects to compete.

Rydell will compete in six events: rings, vault, high bar, floor exercise, parallel bars and pommel horse.

An eighth grader at Carmel Middle School, he has been active in gymnastics for the past five years. He spends three hours a day, four times a week at practice.

Despite the lengthy practices, Rydell finds time to play saxophone, paints and speaks two foreign languages — Swedish and French. Last year, he was a diver on the Carmel Barracudas swim team during the summer.

The 14-year-old Rydell is the son of Dr. Alf and Gull-Britt Rydell.

Bosso finished sixth at the Sunnyvale meet to qualify for the championships this Saturday. The 10-year-old fifth grader at Santa Catalina School also competes in all six events.

Bosso has been active in gymnastics for five years and is in his second season of competition.

Bosso said his favorite event is the rings, although he does better in the parallel bars competition.

"I like the rings because you get a feeling you're free," he said.

He said gymnastics has helped him become flexible, run faster and gain strength. The added physical ability has also helped him in his other sports: baseball and skiing.

Bosso practices three hours a day four days a week. He is the son of Chuck and Ginnie Bosso.

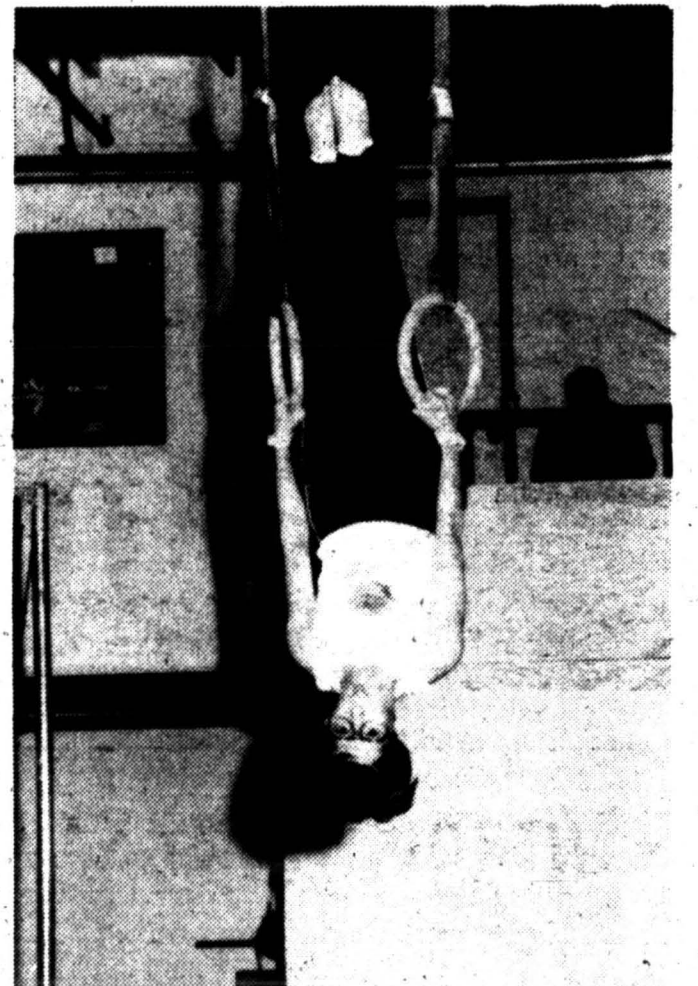

The Monterey Gymnastics Center is coached by Hiroshi Fujimoto, Rick Johnson and Gloria Elber.

Fujimoto, who has worked closely with Rydell and Bosso, said both athletes have a good chance to qualify for the state finals.

"They're both pretty good all-around. Right now they can do all the routines," said Fujimoto. "Right now we hope to perfect the routines and polish up the small details."

LARS RYDELL masters the parallel bars during competition.

CHRIS BOSSO hangs upside down during a practice session on the rings.

Sade's Bar asks city permission to serve food

AN APPLICATION to serve food at Sade's Bar on the south side of Ocean between Ocean Verde and Lincoln, will be submitted to the Board of Adjustments March 24.

Under the general plan moratorium, a use permit must be obtained from the city for "anyone who wants food service in town," said Planning Director Bob Griggs.

If the board finds that the application is consistent with the uses that will be allowed in the area when the new general plan is approved, Sade's will probably be granted permission to open a kitchen, Griggs said.

"We would like to bring food back because we would like Sade's to return to the way it was," said co-owner Ellie Burch.

She said Sade's is the oldest bar in Carmel; it has served food since 1929 and added liquor in 1935 when Prohibition was repealed.

The original site for Sade's was where the Butcher shop is now, on Ocean between Lincoln and Dolores. Sade's was moved to its present location in April, 1938, Ms. Burch said.

If the board approves the application, Ms. Burch said the kitchen would be built on the second floor. The restaurant would serve fish, steak, hot sausage, shoestring french fries, salads and soups. Hours would be 11 a.m. to midnight.

She added that the work will take "at least six months" and that the name would probably be changed to Sade's Bar and Grill.

In other action, the board will consider:

- An application by Ulrich Klettke and Harold Jones for a variance to allow for a reduction in the number of parking spaces for a beauty shop on the east side of Mission between Third and Fourth.

- An application by Christopher Keehn for a variance to allow a reduction in the side yard setback requirements at a residence on the east side of Casanova between Ocean and Seventh.

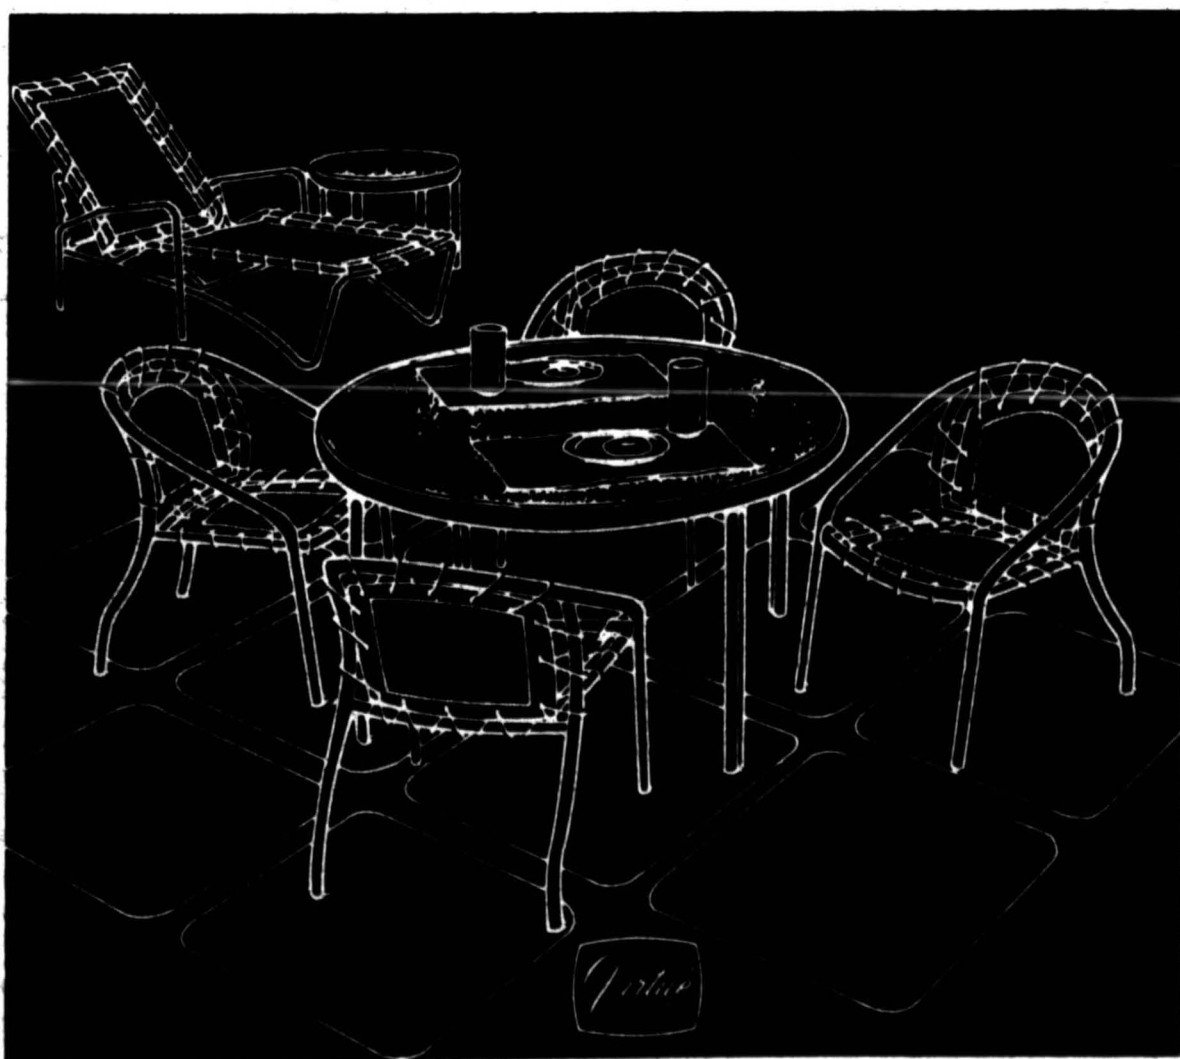

- An application by Ruth Johnson for a variance to allow for a reduction in the parking and side yard setback requirements at a residence on the west side of Dolores between First and Second.

Principals' messages

CVHS SPEAKS OUT

Spring is a time when twigs, which seem dead, bud and bloom; new shoots grow up from old stumps and new life seems to be everywhere.

At Carmel Valley High School it is also a time for renewal and growth. New students are entering, adding their talents and enthusiasm. Others are preparing for graduation and the new challenges that await them.

The staff has been developing new programs for the school. Blake Fuessenich is putting together a program in vocational education, which will provide students with greater knowledge of their strengths and interests and how they can be applied to future careers.

Leslie Holt has been reworking our English program and designing new and better methods and materials to serve the wide spectrum of student needs. Bruce Stannard has used his talents and time to develop a computer education program for our school. This is truly an exciting new addition which will have applications in vocational education and the teaching of basic skills as well as computer literacy. We wish to thank F.O.C.U.S. and the Bing Crosby Youth Project for their support of this program.

All of us at Carmel Valley High School are looking forward to spring and to all the growth and beauty that accompanies it.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRINCIPAL OF CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL

Padre Power! "Awesome" — to quote a close friend. Yes, parents and friends, our Carmel Padres are a wonderfully inspired group of mostly well intentioned, high achievers of whom we should be proud. Their spirit buoys us up and their needs force us to deal realistically with the world.

Spring is a time of renewal, of rebirth, and of setting goals. I invite you to join us in recognizing the potential greatness of our Carmel High School students, by praising them for jobs well done, and by positively guiding them when they falter or ask for assistance. The promise of success, even glory, must be supported by the adult community. We must keep our promise to them, for they are our legacies.

Padre sports schedule

By KAREN EDMONDS

The spring sports at Carmel High School have begun. There are five different sports being played this final season of the year — track, girls' softball, boys' baseball, boys' swimming, and boys' tennis.

After a few early stumbles the baseball team is now 0-3 in pre-league play, but the potential of the players will insure a winning season. Jim Helgason, who coaches the team, has patience with the boys, which wins him the cooperation and respect of the players. Their next home game is scheduled for Friday, March 19 against Gonzales.

The Padre softball team also started the season with a few losses. Their record is 0-2. They lost to high-ranked Monterey and San Lorenzo Valley. The team will be tough competition in league. Tracy Chandler is Carmel's starting star pitcher. Tracy's variety of pitches, and the speed of her fastball will surely lead the girls to victory as pre-league and league play continue.

Jim Powers and Gary Childs are coaching the Padres this year. The next home game for the girls is Friday, March 19 at Carmel Middle School against Gonzales.

The boys' swimming team exploded into the new season with a 110-14 victory over Pacific Grove, on Friday, March 5. The swim team is coached by Jim Agan. The Padres are bound to swim to success in league, and hope to have a powerful relay team for Central Coast Section.

Dave Channey coaches the boys' tennis team. Channey insists the boys be in top condition, and he hopes the rather large team will take flight in the Mission Trail Athletic League this year. The number one ranked player on the team is Olaf DeRouen. The boys played against North Salinas Wednesday, March 17 at home.

The Carmel High School track team is still in conditioning for their pre-league and league seasons. Coach Walthour and Coach Brooks got a late start with the track team due to the success of their work with the wrestling team. The team is small, which could handicap their season.

The MTAL relays at King City were scheduled for Friday, March 12.

The Padre golf team is now 1-1 after beating Salinas by 31 strokes, and losing to the number-one ranked team in CCS, Harbor High School, by five strokes. The Padres are number three in the Central Coast Section rankings. The team starts a tournament in Hollister on Monday, and will start league in two weeks. The Padres have a lot of depth this season. When asked about the team, Coach Buzz Rainer stated: "They can be great, but they have to work." The team's home course is Pebble Beach.

The excitement of spring fills the air as the seasons get underway. The Padres need all the support they can get. Don't miss the thrill of the Carmel High School spring sports.

The drop of moisture does some good
But not as much as all drops would.

CHRONIC PAIN

If you are the unfortunate victim of chronic pain, or one of those told you will just have to learn to live with aches and pains...

Clinical studies indicate that nothing could be further from the truth. Most victims of pain could be helped if they were less willing to accept pain on a permanent basis. Dramatic results are now achieved without the use of conventional drugs or surgery.

Petpourri

Build your cat a cage!

By JUDITH A. EISNER

FOR OPENERS, a short story: The Joneses, after careful deliberation, decided to acquire a kitten. Now, kittens can be acquired in several time-tested ways: one can buy a kitten, or adopt one from an animal shelter, or accept one of the neighbor's spring litter, or be followed home by a meowing waif, or awaken in the middle of a sound sleep to find a heartbroken, hungry, vociferous and eminently appealing catlet on one's front steps. Whatever the manner of acquisition, the Joneses found themselves contemplating life with felis catus.

The transition was simple, painless and joyful. Catlet ate like a horse, was box-trained with nary an accident, played with kittenish abandon and, sated and happy, curled purring into the nearest Jones lap to sleep. The Joneses rapidly grew to love their pet and conscientiously had it inoculated and neutered at the proper time. Then, one day, after months of apparent contentment, Catlet was discovered sitting at an open window wailing pitifully. From then on, whenever a door was opened, the cat tried to dash out. Bringing in the groceries became a cat-catching chore; guests lingering in their good-nights were admonished to "Watch out for the cat!"

Unhappily, the Joneses wondered what they had done to turn their loving pet into a frustrated animal whose entire energies seemed devoted to escaping. They had sought to provide everything a cat could desire; what possessed their pet?

Sooner or later, every cat owner faces this dilemma. Ideally, as any dedicated cat book author will tell you, Puss should be kept indoors from the moment of her birth until her last, eternal sleep. Such writers go to great lengths convincing their readers—and themselves—that cats do not need to ever get closer to the sunshine than through a well-screened window. Unfortunately, 99 percent of the cats in this world have other ideas, and sooner or later comes the day when the cat wants OUT.

AS WE HAVE said often, our modern existence is fraught with peril for the free-roaming cat or dog. Enemy No. 1 is the automobile, which crushes to death hundreds of thousands of cats and dogs each year. And we doubt that even one of our readers lives so far from a road that his pet can be perfectly safe from cars.

In addition to cars, there are the dangers of other animals—cats, dogs and wildlife—and while your pet may survive a battle with them, he may be seriously mauled and torn. There are, sadly, demented individuals who spread poison for animals, as there are unhappy children who torture them. Remote possibilities, but only remote unless they happen to you.

But the cat wants OUT, and he is spending his waking hours and your sleeping ones telling you so. What to do?

You can heave a sigh, part worry and part relief, open the door and wait to see if and when the cat comes back. Or you can attempt to leash and collar train your cat and take it for walks. You can also go out with the cat, into your yard or patio, and try to keep him in sight and hope to be able to recall him when he prowls too far. The problem is that cats, unlike dogs, have little respect for the strongest, highest fence and even less respect for your urgent commands to "come back."

Let's assume that you have accompanied your cat outdoors on his first outing. What does he do, this creature so obsessed with freedom? He finds a sandy spot, flings himself down and rolls with luxurious abandon. Next, he sniffs the rosebushes. The he rolls again. He makes a clumsy swipe at a low-flying butterfly. Then he throws himself down in a sunny corner and takes a nap. Is that all??? You thought he had worlds to conquer, prey to hunt, mountains to climb! And should the neighbor's cat make an appearance, chances are your baby will be scared half out of his wits. If all he wants is a roll in the dust and a sunbath...

Build him a cage. Ridiculous? No, quite the most sensible solution. Provide a safe, secure outdoor area for the cat, one where he can snooze in the sun, watch the birds, chase a butterfly, and still be as safe as he is indoors.

Such a cage—call it a "cat lanai" for euphemistic purposes—can be simple and inexpensive to build. Easy access can be provided through a house window which becomes a cat door. All you need is some lumber scraps, chicken wire and staples. A six foot square cube is ample for one cat; it can be made larger if space and inclination permit. The only requirement is that it be roofed over; otherwise, the cat will scale the walls easily.

A DRIFTWOOD LOG, a tree-stump, even a 4 x 4 post should be installed for climbing, perching and claw-sharpening. Some arrangements should be made to provide shade. This can be natural shade from a tree growing over the cage, or a tarp stretched over part of the roof, or a fiberglass sheet used as an awning. If your cat may be left outside in occasional rain or wind, you can easily build a snug wooden sleeping box, enclosed except for a small hole cut for access and padded with an old pillow.

There should be provisions for a water bowl and, perhaps, a litter box. You can add these comforts if your pet will be spending enough time outdoors to warrant them. You should include in the plans a "human door," with a cat-proof latch so you can enter the cage to tidy it up.

Your cat will quickly learn to ask you to open the window for him, and you will enjoy being able to peek out to watch him, that great outdoor beast, rolling in the sand and taking a snooze, or stalking the birds outside the cage to his heart's content.

Supervisors meet March 23

Library compromise talks fail

LAST-MINUTE compromise attempts have failed and the city-county library budget battle will be fought out before the Monterey County Board of Supervisors when it meets Tuesday, March 23.

Monterey County Administrator Richard Andrews said this week that last-minute attempts to develop a compromise with city libraries has failed and he will recommend that supervisors adopt a consultant's recommendation to cut reimbursements to city libraries.

Supervisors have the last say in the issue, which has boiled since consultant David Sabsay released his recommendation that reimbursements be cut for city libraries that provide services to patrons who live in unincorporated areas.

Supporters of the consultant's recommendation claim that there is a disparity between funds spent for rural library patrons and the monies allocated to city libraries. Monterey County has allocated about 25 percent of its library budget to reimbursements for city libraries.

However, city officials claim that the county should provide reimbursements for services to non-city resident patrons. City officials have threatened to close library doors to county residents or charge a service fee if reimbursements are cut.

Harrison Memorial Library would lose about $130,000 of its $160,000 county reimbursements if supervisors adopt Sabsay's recommendation, said Carmel Library Director Peg Richter.

Asked if the fiscal crunch would affect future plans for a library annex and parking lot, Ms. Richter replied: "I don't know. Our library board would have to sit down and reconsider our priorities and funding. We have to set our priorities."

Monterey Public Library Director Dorothy Steven said she has finished her 1982-83 budget and has included the current level of county reimbursements in her figures.

"They have to reimburse us," she said. "I worked in the budget the assumption that we would be getting the appropriate reimbursements."

City librarians have also indicated they hope supervisors do not stall action on the recommendation for much longer.

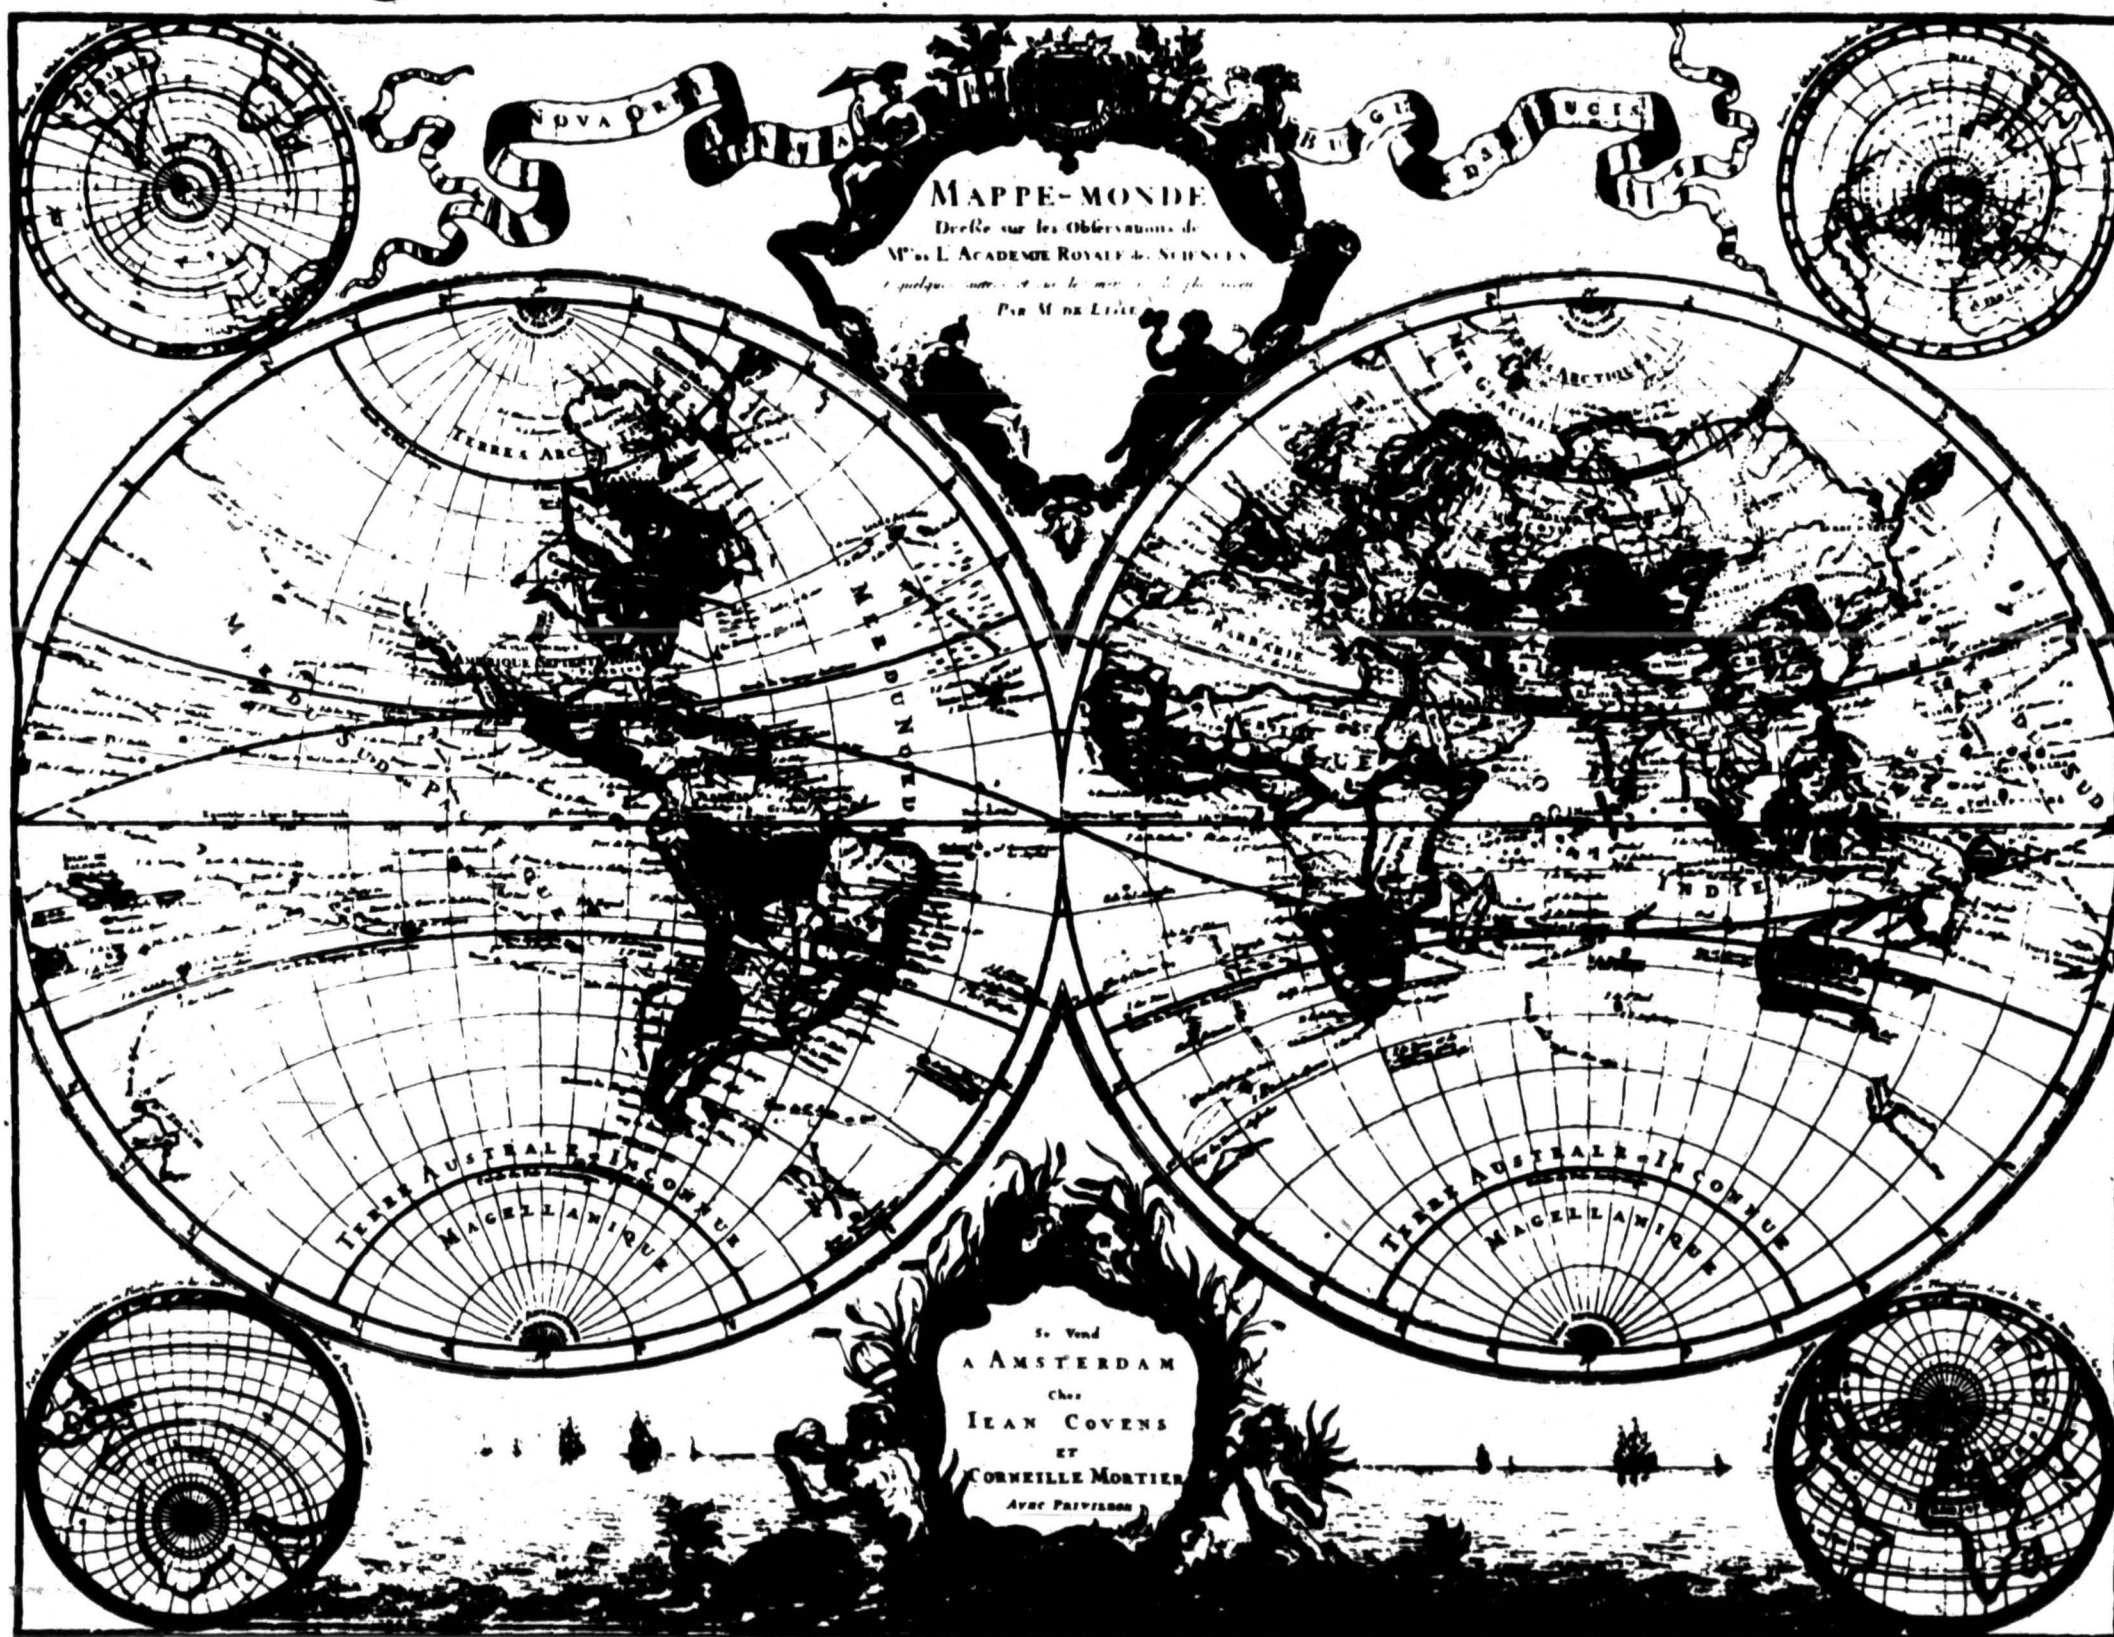

"We have to start working on the budget. My budget time is in March," Ms. Richter said.

"We don't want to wait until they (supervisors) work their budget out. Their budget year starts in October," said Mrs. Steven. "There's been plenty of time to work this out."

There have been attempts to compromise by both parties, but all have failed. There have been several lengthy meetings the past three months between county and city officials. However, they proved fruitless.

The supervisors have scheduled a public hearing on the issue for 1:30 p.m. that day.

Rugby returns to Pebble Beach

THEY'RE BIG, STRONG AND FEARLESS and they all want to win! Thirty-two rugby teams from all parts of the U.S. will collide on Collins Polo Field, Pebble Beach on Saturday and Sunday when the 24th annual Monterey National Rugby Championship kicks off. The oldest rugby tournament in the country, the Monterey event is also considered the best. (Steven A. Gann photo)

32 teams will brawl for title
this weekend

Controlled mayhem returns to Collins Polo Field, Pebble Beach this weekend when 32 rugby teams converge in the National Invitation Rugby Tournament Saturday and Sunday, March 20 and 21. The teams represents all parts of the United States, including Dartmouth College in New Hampshire. Teams from Canada will also compete.

The Santa Monica Rugby Club will return to defend its championship title. Seeded fourth last year, the team defeated the Newport Beach Rugby Club 11-4 to take the 1981 title. A 1982 victory would be their fifth.

Only Stanford University has more Monterey wins than Santa Monica. Stanford won eight times from 1961 to 1971. The University Club took the title in 1962; Long Beach RFC won in 1966; and USC was the 1967 victor.

Top seeds for this year's tournament, in addition to Santa Monica and Newport Beach, will probably be the Old Blues, the Seahawks from San Jose, the Cal Berkeley, the Stanford University team and the Bay Area Touring Sids team from San Francisco.

Local favorite Monterey Rugby Club brings its best record in memory to the tournament and could surprise more than a few teams.

Play begins at 7 a.m. Saturday and 8:30 a.m. Sunday. Daily tickets are $5 and may be purchased at the Highway 1 and Carmel gates to Pebble Beach the days of the tournament, or on the field. There will be no advance sale of tickets.

Co-chairmen of the event are Geoff Hampton and Frank Mercurio. Both are members of the Jaycees of the Monterey Peninsula which sponsors the championships. Proceeds will benefit local charities and youth groups including the Special Olympics, the March of Dimes, Multiple Sclerosis and the Seaside Boys Club.

Two 1930s Busby Berkeley classic musicals, Japanese movie will be screened by Film Society

A Gold Diggers Night and the premiere of a Japanese film are scheduled by the Monterey Peninsula Film Society this week. Toe tapping and a dose of nostalgia are promised with the screening of two Busby Berkeley films on Friday and Saturday, March 19 and 20. A gentle love story, Princess Yag Kwei Fei, will be shown on Wednesday, March 24.

Footlights Parade will screen first in the double bill planned for Gold Diggers Night. James Cagney, Joan Blondell and Dick Powell star in this 1933 film which is filled with romance, elegance and nostalgia.

Following an intermission and refreshments, Gold Diggers of 1935 will be shown. Considered Busby Berkeley's masterpiece, this film features fantastic production numbers, high camp surrealism and beautiful girls tapping and warbling! The finale, Lullaby of Broadway, is a special treat.

Princess Yang Kwei Fei, filmed in Japanese with English subtitles, will premiere on Wednesday. Directed by Kenji Mizoguchi, the film is one of the most beautiful love stories ever filmed and is a testament to Mizoguchi's lifelong commitment to the celebration of women.

Set in 8th century China, Princess Yang Kwei Fei tells the story of the last T'ang emperor, who falls in love with a servant girl and makes her empress. The final scenes show Huan Tsung losing his Cinderella, then regaining her in a mystical embrace from beyond the grave.

Part fairy tale, part ghost story, the film is set in pastel colors of indescribable beauty. The Los Angeles Times called it "a sublime, beautiful, romantic tragedy."

All films are shown at 8:15 p.m. in the Monterey Auditorium, 440 Van Buren, Monterey. Admission is $3 general and $2.50 students and society members.

For more information, phone 659-4795.

Acclaimed Dutch soprano Ameling will make Carmel appearance

Universally beloved and acclaimed Dutch soprano Elly Ameling will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday, March 20 in Sunset Theater, Carmel. The concert is presented by the Carmel Music Society.

Since her American debut in New York at the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts in 1968, Ameling has made annual tours of the United States and Canada. In New York City she has performed at Carnegie Hall, the Lincoln Center Mostly Mozart Festival, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and Hunter College among other appearances.

In March, 1978 her concert at the Lincoln Center Great Performers Series was so successful that she was invited to give her own set of three recitals in this prestigious series during the 1979-80 season. She returned to the Great Performers Series for another recital in 1980-81.

Ameling has performed with the Boston, Chicago, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, National, San Francisco, Cincinnati, Vancouver and Toronto Symphony Orchestras, National Arts Centre Orchestra of Ottawa, Rochester Philharmonic and St. Paul and Los Angeles Chamber Orchestras. She is a familiar guest artist at important summer festivals.

In 1976 she toured Australia and the Far East and has since made repeat visits. In June 1979 she undertook her debut tour of South America and returned in July.

Elly Ameling was born in Rotterdam in The Netherlands. She studied singing there with Jo Bellekamp, in Scheveningen with Jacoba and Sam Dresden and with Bodi Rapp in Amsterdam. She studied the French art song in Paris with Pierre Bernac. Her career began when she was awarded first prize at the Concours International de Musique in Geneva.

Ameling has also appeared in recital throughout Europe and South Africa. She has performed with the Berlin Philharmonic, Concertgebouw and Philharmonia Orchestras, BBC Symphony, English Chamber Orchestra and the Academy of St. Martin-in-the-Fields. After working with her, Ernst Ansermet said, "A good voice is a blessing from somewhere above; Madame Ameling stands continually under this downpour, of which the romanticists would have said is of divine origin."

While Elly Ameling's personal preference is for the German lieder and French melodies of her song recitals, she is truly at home in all forms of singing: chamber music, concerts with orchestra, oratorios and opera. Her versatility also encompasses the modern repertoire.

Her list of recordings is as impressive as it is endless. Included among the honors she has been awarded are the Grand Prix du Disque, Edison Award, Preis der Deutschen Schallplattenkritik and Stereo Review Record of the Year Award. Her album of the complete Mozart songs received the 1979 Opera News Best of the Year Award.

Elly Ameling has been honored by her native government with knighthood: Ridder in de Orde van Oranje Nassau.

Tickets for the concert are $7, $8 and $9. They are available in Carmel at Do Re Mi Music in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Rd. and in Carmel Plaza, Ocean and Mission; The Musik Box, Ocean and Dolores; and Carmel Music, Dolores and Sixth. Tickets may also be purchased at Lily Walker Records, 169 Fountain, Pacific Grove.

For further information, phone 372-1226.

ELLY AMELING, international acclaimed Dutch soprano, will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday, March 20 in Sunset Theater, Carmel. Ameling has, more than any other singer, established interest in the art of lieder singing in the United States. An integral member of America's musical life through her semi-annual tours, Ameling frequently appears with orchestras and festivals in New York, Boston, Chicago, Toronto and Vancouver. The event is sponsored by the Carmel Music Society. Tickets are $7, $8 and $9.

Film review:

All's fair in 'Making Love'

By LISA JENSEN

Making Love is a well-meaning attempt by writer Barry Sandler and director Arthur Hill to make homosexuality palatable to the middle-class American movie audience.

Like Hill's 1970 hit Love Story, which legitimized premarital campus sex for a generation of disapproving parents, Making Love dresses up its sexual theme in romantic gloss. And it's set in the affluent WASP milieu that's been mined so successfully in recent films like Kramer vs. Kramer, Ordinary People and The Four Seasons.

Zack (Michael Ontkean) is a Los Angeles doctor who's been happily married for eight years to Claire (Kate Jackson), a television executive. Best friends and lovers, they have everything they could possibly want as a couple. But privately, Zack is haunted by a persistent, if repressed, attraction to other men, which he's always been too timid to pursue.

All that changes when he meets Bart (Harry Hamlin) a respected young homosexual writer who comes in one day for a checkup. His short, sweet affair with Bart forces Zack to face up to his homosexuality. And though Bart is too footloose and independent to settle into the monogamous relationship Zack craves, the experience convinces Zack that to continue in his marriage would be unfair both to Claire and himself.

Sandler develops both love stories with even-handed credibility. Zack and Claire genuinely enjoy each other and there's no attempt to "blame" his dilemma on any imagined fault in her. And the flirty, bantering spark of Zack's initial meetings with Bart is very appealing (and far more affecting than the lush, string-drenched romanticism of their first night together).

And the film generally avoids the usual gay stereotypes. True, both Zack and Bart have domineering fathers and are suckers for "corny old movies" starring sex goddess icons Elizabeth Taylor and Marilyn Monroe. But these guys aren't desperate, guilt-ridden bar cruisers; they're well-adjusted, almost ridiculously productive members of urban society whose lives don't revolve around sex.

But sex is the key issue here, since sex with a man is all Zack is lacking. In this respect, Making Love is too well-behaved for its own good. The approach is so rational, it borders on clinical, from the sterile white interiors that frame every scene to the periodic "interviews" with Claire and Bart recalling their experiences with Zack long after the fact.

This not only robs the film of any passion (a fatal mistake in a story about sexual desire) but keeps the audience at an emotional distance throughout. And the characters spend so much time analyzing their feelings instead of acting on them that things often slow to a disconcerting, but deadly crawl.

The final blow is Zack. He's the only member of the triangle who isn't required to explain himself, and Ontkean's performance is too detached to convey the sexual tension that supposedly drives the character (and the plot) forward.

Even after Zack's "come out," Ontkean remains aloof and uncommitted, leaving a question mark where the film's heart should be.

Making Love never gets under the skin of the one character whose homosexual experience it means to explore, and the audience is left on the outside looking in.

What's playing at the movies

The Amateur: A suspense-packed espionage thriller. The amateur Charles Heller, played by John Savage, takes matters into his own hands and pursues the terrorists who brutally murdered his girl friend. Heller's pursuit leads him behind the Iron Curtain to a confrontation with the head of Czech intelligence played by Christopher Plummer. Marthe Keller has the sensitive role of a CIA operative in Prague who has little affection for her American employers. The movie is based on Robert Littell's best-selling novel. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Beast Within: Scenes of graphic and violent horror. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Cannery Row: Filmed on the Monterey Peninsula, this film recreates the boisterous Monterey waterfront of the 1940s, a haven for derelicts, dreamers and nonconformists who triumph over harsh realities with their compassion and good humor intact. A touching love affair between Doc (Nick Nolte), an enigmatic and eccentric marine biologist and Suzy (Debra Winger), a pretty young drifter determined to survive, begins. Audra Lindley stars as the shrewd, earthy madame. Narrated by John Huston. Rated R. At the Center Cinemas.

Charlots of Fire: A wealthy Jewish boy becomes a star runner and a Scots missionary sprints for the glory of God. The two men, driven in different ways, lead England to gold medals and glory in the 1924 Olympics in Paris. Beautifully blended color photography. Starring Ben Cross, Ian Charleson, and Alice Krige. Rated PG. At the Golden Bough.

Cheech & Chong's Nice Dreams: The hilarious comedy team of Cheech & Chong in another manic film, directed by Chong. Rated PG. At the Dream Theater.

Death Wish II: A man played by Charles Bronson, whose family has been viciously assaulted and murdered, devotes his life to vengeance. Jill Ireland and Vincent Gardenia also star. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Evil Under the Sun: An Agatha Christie thriller about a famous detective, Hercule Poirot, played by Peter Ustinov, who while vacationing in Greece realizes that crime does not take a holiday. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema.

French Lieutenant's Woman: Based on John Fowles' ambiguous novel of passion and romance in 19th century England. This movie stars Meryl Streep and Jeremy Irons playing two different pairs of lovers in different centuries. As the Victorian lovers, they are urgent and romantic; as two actors playing the Victorians, they are shallow and insincere. Rated R. At the Dream Theater.

Missing: A suspense thriller based on a true story. A distraught father (Jack Lemmon) searches for his son, played by Charles Horman, who disappeared following the military coup that overthrew the Allende government in Chile in 1973. Lemmon is superb as the establishment-minded father. Sissy Spacek plays his daughter-in-law. Rated PG. At the Hill Theatre.

Montenegro: A whimsical erotic comedy about a pampered American lady (Susan Anspach) going crazy from too much money and not enough sex, who leaves her stolid Swedish-businessman-husband played by Erland Josephson. She finds fulfillment among the coarse Yugoslavian emigres who live and work in sexy squalor in a Stockholm distillery. Filmed in English in Sweden. At the Dream Theater.

On Golden Pond: Katharine Hepburn and Henry Fonda offer a story of a couple still passionately in love after 48 years. Jane Fonda plays their daughter. Rated PG. At the Carmel Village Theatre.

Pennies From Heaven: Concerns the efforts of a song-sheet salesman trying to make the lyrics of his wares become reality. The place is Chicago, the year 1934 — a hard year and place. This is a highly stylized musical with a score containing dozens of the popular songs of the day. Stars Bernadette Peters, Steve Martin, Jessica Harper, and Christopher Walken. Rated R. At the Dream Theater.

Porky's: A ribald comedy of adolescence in the '50's directed by Bob Clark. The title is derived from the name of a notorious redneck dive to which six teenagers are hypnotically drawn in the belief that they can purchase carnal experience on its premises. A youthful comedy which is a showcase for the six talented actors. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Quest For Fire: If you loved Chewbacca, you'll go ape over Naoh, Gau and Ika in this film. A story about early man and our beginning. Many strange beasts of prehistoric times such as vicious saber-toothed tigers and Indian elephants. There are some scenes to make you laugh, whether intentional or not. Rated PG. At the Cinema 70.

Raiders of the Lost Ark: Written by George Lucas and directed by Steven Spielberg. Harrison Ford plays Indiana Jones, an archeologist and adventurer, who searches for a valuable holy artifact, the Ark of the Covenant. Set in the 1930's. At the Center Cinemas.

Ragtime: The E.L. Doctorow novel about three remarkable families in America at the turn of the century. Stars James Cagney, Debbie Allen, Brad Dourif, Moses Gunn, Norman Mailer and Bessie Love. Directed by Milos Forman. Rated PG. At the Center Cinemas.

Richard Pryor Live on the Sunset Strip: Pryor is the writer and star of this film, which was shot live at the Hollywood Palladium on two consecutive evenings. With a mixture of wit and warmth, he takes his audience through hilarious accounts of his life, and finally, "Pryor on fire," a re-telling of what led to the accident which nearly cost him his life. Rated R. At the Regency.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: A movie about two teenagers and a transvestite from another planet. Fri. and Sat. midnight show. At the Dream Theater.

The Sound of Music: The beautiful musical of the von Trapp family in Austria. The sweeping scenery and music delight audiences again and again. Julie Andrews stars. Rated G. At the Dream Theater.

Backgammon

Conservative or daring?

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You White, roll 3-2 in the diagrammed position. How do you play it?

The conservative move is with one or both of the back men. Bring them in comfortably, and then move off your bar point. Safety is not guaranteed. When the time comes to get off your bar point you may roll 6-5. Or Black may manage to keep one man in your home board and may hit a blot that you have to leave while bearing off. Unlikely, but quite possible.

The daring move is to bring both men in now from the bar point. If Black rolls any six except double six he must bring one man out. You are then an enormous favorite to hit one or both of his blots. With just moderate luck you will close your board, shutting out one or both of his men. Then you have a fine chance to gammon him.

What happens if he rolls double six when you give up your bar point? To begin with, this is ten times less likely than six on one die and some other number on the other die. Secondly, you'd be in almost the same pickle if you brought all of your men in and Black then rolled the double six. Third, even if you play safe you're not absolutely sure of the game and you have virtually no chance for a gammon.

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send $1 plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.

Sunset Views

*A focal point
for the arts*

By RICHARD TYLER

NO MATTER HOW MUCH one may ignore or be unacquainted with the facts, they do show that it is the cultural history and activities of a community that prevail in their own time as well as for the future.

When you think of ancient architecture, the pyramids of Egypt, the temples of Greece and the buildings of Rome come to mind. Greece is also prominent when you speak of the theater. Every known and remembered civilization and community is documented by its artistic and philosophical contributions to mankind.

Of course, many countries and nations are remembered or studied for their extraordinary abilities in industry, law and medicine. But these activities were nurtured and cultivated in an atmosphere of cultural surroundings more often than not. When we think of certain cities or parts of the world, we associate them with their cultural environment. Who thinks of Paris without the Eiffel Tower, the Louvre, Notre Dame and the Opera House? The Sistine Chapel at the Vatican ... the Petti Palace in Florence ... the statue of David ... Dresden China ... Vienna Staatsoper ... the Hermitage ... the Inca ruins ... the Taj Mahal ... the Hong Kong Festival of the Arts ... the Bach Festival of Carmel

We constantly participate in cultural activities, programmed or spontaneous. Art is all around us in all forms; all you have to do is look and see it ... the beauty of the trees, the flowers, the walks, the shoreline, the outline of a building against a sunset, the sound of bells in the distance, movement, music, and color all around you every day. How special a community it is that can offer you all these in both a natural and programmed ambience! Certainly a visitor to Carmel is eager to view the natural beauty of the area, but many stay to participate in the cultural programs.

The fact is that many come for the cultural programs of the city. There is data available from a number of associations that respond to inquiries from travelers that show definite interest in particular activities, theater programming and their schedules.

THE LOCAL RESIDENT has a particular advantage in living in the center of such apparent vitality. While they may not have the choice of as many programs in a larger community, there is selection and usually in any given week a film, musical presentation, or art show is offered.

Now, let us get to other facts:

The Community and Cultural Center is the center of activity in Carmel. Shall we define activity? We mean a duplicate bridge game, an art class, a lecture in metaphysics, an exercise class, a discussion on how to stop smoking or to lose weight, a Greek dance class, a filmed lecture on the praying mantis or carnivorous plants, an Oscar Winners' Film Festival, a dance festival, the symphony concerts, the chamber music recitals, and many more.

More people use the Center to attend a program or to just sit in its mini-park areas than any other area except, perhaps, the beach. But then there is limited activity there and the Center is used from early morning until late at night. One performance in the theater will accommodate 733 people. An active evening of classes and theater production will have as many as 1,000 people on the premises. The excitement that is generated by the coming together of people of common interests cannot be imagined. It is an experience to partake of such enthusiasm. It is sad not to know the zest with which these programs are approached.

Sunset Cultural Center, as it is known in many parts of the country, is considered a focal point of the arts. The Carmel Bach Festival is considered an international celebration. The Monterey County Symphony is rated among the top 100 metropolitan orchestras in the United States. The Carmel Festival of Dance, which this year has sold out, has presented world famous artists such as Erik Hawkins, the Joffrey II, the Alvin Ailey Repertory Ballet, the Jose Molina Company, and many dance groups from Europe and the Far East. Marilyn Horne, Isaac Stern, Jean Pierre Rampal, Jean Phillippe Collard, Elizabeth Schwarzkopf, George Shearing, and Earl Garner (Jazz at Sunset) have all appeared at the Center.

Such diverse activities as an arboretum seminar, Carmel High School dance program, Brown Bag lunches, fire department drill, election station, Homecrafters' Marketplace, Explorer Scout meetings, and the Conference for Medical Research all occupy the premises at one time or another. There were over 1,300 single activities at the Center last year. (It seems that we have already surpassed that number this year.)

The facts are to keep this level of activity the community must re-commit itself. At a time when federal and state subsidies are dwindling for many organizations, it is the obligation of the community to support the various endeavors that make our city unique.

In addition to a direct amount of more than $120,000 that the city will receive from the activities at the Center, there are monies generated by motel and sales tax and other entertainment income that can be rightly attributed to the programming at the Center.

But, it is not the monies generated by the activities nor the expense of maintaining this special structure that should be the main discussion of the Center. The fact is that the Sunset Community and Cultural Center is the forum, the gathering place, of Carmel.

The Monterey Public Library will screen short films on Thursday, March 18 and Friday, March 19 at the library, 625 Pacific St., Monterey.

The Thursday program begins at 2 p.m. with Glasgow, a film which explores the stark, clashing contrasts of that Scottish city. Drama, creation and imagination are compacted intensely in Glasgow. Three films for kids of all ages will be screened from 4-5 p.m. on Friday.

HOW CARMELITES SAW IN DARK

While Carmel still has few street lights outside the business district, there were none at all in the early days. Residents out at night used to find their way with a peculiarly local lantern made of a punctured soup can with a candle fastened inside.

Bach Festival director honored

By LYN BRONSON

On Friday, March 12 at the Carmel Art Association, the board of directors of the Carmel Bach Festival held its annual season preview consisting of a wine and cheese reception and a presentation by Dr. Sando Salgo describing some of the highlights of the 1982 season.

We were reminded that this is the 45th season of the Festival, and that Dr. Salgo has directed it now for 27 years. You could be forgiven for thinking that after 27 years the Maestro might be saturated with the baroque masters to the point of routinely grinding out each season's program by formula — eight parts Bach, one part Handel, one part Vivaldi (or Corelli), add a pinch of Mozart and stir until well mixed.

Nothing could be farther from the truth. Anyone who has ever heard Salgo address an audience cannot fail to be mesmerized by his passion for music, his sense of wonder at the miraculous creation of the great composers and his feeling of devotion and duty in deciphering some of the mysteries of baroque performance practice.

No matter how much one knows about Bach and his creative output, Salgo always manages to add a new perspective to familiar works and to introduce us to less well-known ones — and make us wonder why we don't know them as well as we should.

Standing in front of a microphone, and completely at ease with his audience, he seems never at a loss for words to express various subtleties of meaning. And his choice of words neither condescends to pop culture nor aspires to impress with learned academic jargon comprehensible only to doctoral candidates.

To illustrate a point he played a recorded excerpt from the B Minor Mass and even as the music was playing, pointed out noteworthy details — a pulsing heart beat here, a chromatic progression there, each in some way emphasizing an important detail in the liturgical text. It was an impressive tour de force and a fascinating opportunity to hear the music the way the Maestro does.

As to the 1982 season itself, some of the major works we will hear will be the B Minor Mass and Mozart's Magic Flute. The popular pianist Ilana Vered will return for a re-engagement, and harpsichordist Madeline Ingram will play the Goldberg Variations. There will be many familiar faces and some new ones. As always, there will be much to look forward to.

The Chamber Music Society presented the Alma Trio at Sunset Theater Saturday evening and it was a glorious example of all that chamber music should be.

Pianist Adolph Baller, violinist Andor Toth and cellist Gabor Rejto have been playing together as a trio since 1944. As might be expected, their ensemble has that smooth, effortless quality that comes from an easy familiarity with one's partners and their conception of the music they play.

Observing and listening to each member of the Trio as they played important solos was fascinating. They had in common the same confident mastery of their respective instruments that made each one utterly compelling as a soloist. And when they played equal or subordinate roles, you could tell they were listening with the same intensity as when they were playing solos.

Although their opening work, the Beethoven Trio in B Flat Major, Op. 11, exhibited a high level of artistry and precision, there was a subtle air of caution throughout the performance. There is certainly nothing very unusual about this, since most performers need warmup time in order to settle down and feel confident with their audience.

The slow movement opened with a moment of considerable magic as Mr. Rejto served up an exquisitely shaped cello solo which could not have been played more beautifully. Mr. Toth and Mr. Baller, in echoing this phrase, continued this magic.

The second work on the program, the Brahms Trio in B Major, Op. 5, received a dark hue, dramatic reading full of fire and nobility. One of the marvels of the Alma Trio is the amount of sound they can project without forcing tone or producing an ugly sound.

In the second movement, one of the most satisfying scherzos ever written, Mr. Baller displayed dazzling virtuosity tempered with restraint. Everywhere there was marvelous wit and repartee, and the music crackled with tension. In the Adagio, Toth and Rejto played an intensely moving duet against an accompaniment of widely-spaced, slow-moving chords in the piano, which was supremely effective. The last movement was full of intense playing from all the players. This was, quite simply, the best performance of this work I have ever heard.

After intermission came the concluding work, Schubert's mighty Trio in E Flat Major, Op. 100. For all its length of approximately 40 minutes, the Alma Trio maintained the continuity very nicely from beginning to end. Again, this was a great performance.

The first movement's second theme was beautifully played by Mr. Baller — precisely articulated and exquisitely shaped. One had to admire the sensitive way the ends of phrases were so beautifully shaded.

The slow movement with its heartfelt, poignant melody,

Photo grants offered through 'Friends'

Deadlines for filing applications for the 1982 Ruttenberg Fellowship and the 1982 Ferguson Grant have been announced by the Friends of Photography, Carmel. Applications for the newly-established Ruttenberg Fellowship will be accepted now, must be postmarked no later than May 15 and must be received in Carmel by June 1. Applications for the Ferguson Grant will be accepted between April 15 and 30.

The Ruttenberg Fellowship, a $2,000 award, will be given annually beginning in 1982. It will allow an artist to undertake a specific photographic project.

Application will be made through the submission of a written project proposal. A set of no more than 20 slides of photographs must accompany the application. The selection committee may request a portfolio of photographs from a group of finalists. If no suitable proposal is received, the committee will have the option to withhold the annual award and to commission an appropriate project.

To obtain detailed guidelines and application instructions for the Ruttenberg Fellowship, send a self-addressed stamped envelope and a written request to Ruttenberg Fellowship, The Friends of Photography, P.O. Box 500, Carmel, CA 93921.

The Ferguson Grant is a $2,000 cash award presented each year by The Friends of Photography to a photographer who has demonstrated a commitment to and excellence in creative photography. The purpose of the grant is to assist in the professional artistic growth of the recipient. While experience qualifications for the grant are not specifically defined, previous grants have generally been awarded to photographers who have established a record of contributions to the medium, yet who are not widely known.

The first Ferguson Grant was awarded to Anthony Hernandez in 1972. Since then awards have been presented to Joseph Jachna (1973); Ken Graves (1974); Sally Mann (1975); Richard Misrach (1976); Meridel Rubenstein (1977); Jo Ann Callis (1978); David Maclay (1979); Mark Klett (1980); and Susan Felter (1981).

To obtain a copy of the grant guidelines and specific requirements for shipping and packing portfolios, write Ferguson Grant in care of The Friends of Photography. Include a self-addressed stamped envelope.

which curiously enough is never shared by the violin as a solo, was intensely moving. In the long finale, with its famous repeated note passages in the piano, which Mr. Baller appeared to play with his fourth finger rather than rapidly changing fingers, the Trio managed to hold the rambling structure together in an admirable manner.

As an encore, the Trio returned to the stage to play a movement from the Ravel Trio. They looked tired, for it had been a long program, but they sounded as though they could go on for several hours more.

Home-munching critters are smaller than this fellow, but they can be destructive. That's why buyers want to be sure that your home is free of such pests.

We can help. We're not pest control experts, but we go out with the inspector and often crawl under the house with him. We watch the work being done. How to Impress
Your Friends

Imagine being able to offer free parking to your guests for the U.S. Open in June! And a short downhill jaunt to the first tee at Pebble Beach! And an easy stroll to events all year long at the Lodge! This is a beautifully centered location for the Crosby—easy access to Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill. Just across the road from the polo field, equestrian contests, the Peter Hay Course, Concours d'Elegance and the Scottish Games. And all with a spectacular view of Carmel Bay, comfortable patios in close, total privacy with unbelievable convenience to the action.

That's what you get in this happily located home at 17 Mile Drive and Forest Lake Road. That, plus a full acre of flat, gardened lot, many Monterey pines, 2 double garages, 4 bedrooms, 4 baths, den, library, formal dining room and a separate guest house with bedroom, bath and sitting room. Sam Morse, years ago, regarded this as one of the premium spots in all of Pebble Beach.

If it were a shack, the location would make it valuable. But a shack it's not! The house, painted barn red with sparkling white trim, stretches across the lot well back from the road. A rail fence crosses the front, parking areas give space for up to 20 cars, and the house opens out in both directions.

The entrance is at the center. An entry hall; spacious living room at right; den, study, bedroom suite and 2 car garage beyond them; kitchen and dining room at the rear. To the left are 2 bedrooms with adjoining baths. Up the stairs, master suite with study and compartmented bath and an even wider view of the Bay.

The guest house is at the far left, a separate establishment with a second 2 car garage, connected by a breezeway to the main house.

This house will accommodate a large family, or an untold number of guests. It's set up for entertaining, designed with superb taste in every particular. Your biggest problem will be scheduling the comings and goings. Over 3000 square feet. $750,000.

Captivating Carmel Cottages

Within strolling distance of shops and the post office, this shingle-roofed, frame cottage just south of Sunset Center is fresh with new paint inside and outside, also features reconditioned hardwood floors and contains living room, kitchen bedrooms and bath. A garage, space for expansion and possible owner-assisted financing are added assets. $164,500.

Secluded within grapestake fences in a peaceful part of town, and with a graceful oak sheltering its entrance patio, this shake-roofed, redwood home is enhanced by open beam ceilings and paneling of redwood; shuttered, casement windows; hardwood and carpeted floors; also bookcases and built-ins. Living room with fireplace; dining room; laundry and pantry off a compact kitchen; two bedrooms and two baths are included in living space. A detached garage and downstairs storage space increase desirability. $225,000.

In a woodsy and very quiet neighborhood just a level, four-block walk south of Ocean Avenue, this shake-roofed, redwood cottage and a separate studio are secluded within ivy-covered fences enclosing an oversize lot. The carefully planned interior — featuring beamed wood ceilings, carpeted floors, bookcases and built-ins — embraces a spacious living/dining area, compact kitchen, laundry, master suite, second bedroom and another wallpapered bathroom. The studio, across a patio, also has a beamed ceiling and carpeted floor and adds to desirability of this very private property. $235,000.

The charm of earlier-era, frame houses has been retained in renovation and expansion of this four-bedroom, four-bath home with a newer guest house across a big, brick patio, and ocean and Point Lobos view from its upstairs master suite with a fireplace. Another fireplace is in the large living/dining area co-ordinated with a modernized kitchen. Hardwood and carpeted floors, paneled walls, walk-in closets, unexpected nooks and a very large lot add interest to this property just inside the city's south boundary and only five blocks from the beach. $325,000.

*after two years,
my bank still doesn't know who I am.*

At The National Bank of Carmel, we have the old-fashioned idea that if someone can remember our name, the least we can do is remember theirs.

In banking, it doesn't always happen that way.

For example, a retired gentleman in Carmel recently answered our community survey by saying he felt two years was ample time for his bank to get to know who he was.

Well, he should bank with us.

From the moment he walks through our front door, he'll know that The National Bank of Carmel doesn't think of people as numbers on a balance sheet.

You see, we have always felt that the better we know our customers, the better able we are to help them financially.

Ask anyone who banks with us.
